Solon Moves To Save Gate Area For Park

Expressed intent of the federal government to sell Marin County and other military land to private interests was described today as "high-handed and arbitrary" by State Sen. John F. McCarthy (R-Marin).

He declared the General Services Administration's minimum $8,000-an-acre price for 73 acres of military land next to Sausalito and scheduled for public auction was "utterly fantastic," commenting:

"How could they realistically expect a private developer to pay that for unimproved land? —much less the State of California!"

McCarthy said he was proceeding immediately to rally federal, state, county and city help to save the San Francisco Bay headlands for and envisioned Golden Gateway Memorial Park.

McCarthy said in organizing for action he had at once phoned for support and strategy suggestions to Charles DeTurk, chief of the State Division of Beaches and Parks; Vice President Richard Nixon; Sen. Thomas Kuchel; Mrs. Mary Summers, county planning director, Sausalito City Manager Charles Brown and the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

His Washington calls, he said, indicate that hopes are fading for a federal government declaration that the entire area is historical, to be turned over by congressional action to the state for recreational purposes.

"We can, however, try to obtain the land at a fair price," said McCarthy, "with some arrangement to spread payments out over a period of years if necessary."

McCarthy pointed out that the State of California has $250,000 which was appropriated by the legislature at its recent session to buy land from the fedral government for the Golden Gateway Memorial Park project.

From Senator Kuchel's office he learned, McCarthy said, that it might be possible to get a small part of the land as an historical monument, but not the large acreage for which the state had hoped.

He said $2,00 an acre would be a top realistic expectation on the part of the General Services Administration, at which price the state should be able to negotiate a sale.

A call to Washington by McCarthy last week caused postponement of the intended June 15 auction of 73 acres. Of 160

SUNNY, BREEZY WEEKEND FOR BAY AREA SEEN

A sunny but breezy weekend is in store for the San Francisco Bay Area with small craft warnings up for west to northwesterly winds of 25-35 miles an hour.

Today's high temperature was forecast at 62, dropping to 42-49 tonight, with little change expected tomorrow.

Fair and windy weather was also promised for the rest of Northern California except for scattered showers near the Oregon border.

Kennedy Wins In Oregon; Morse Quits

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) won a spectacular upset victory over Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.) in Oregon's presidential primary yesterday and Morse announced he was withdrawing as a candidate.

Morse congratulated Kennedy after he awakened this morning to find that Kennedy's victory margin of last night was mounting relentlessly.

"I shall of course discontinue any further efforts to gather delegates for the convention," Morse said.

Kennedy, gathering more than half the Democratic vote despite the five-man field, said flatly meanwhile that "I will be nominated at Los Angeles."

Violent Quake Rocks Chile; Death Toll High

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A violent earthquake shook the industrial city of Concepcion and a 200-square-mile surrounding area today. There were fears that loss of life would be heavy.

The Ministry of the Interior announced that 91 persons were known dead in the area.

First reports coming in over damaged communication lines said 400 houses in the old section of Concepcion had collapsed and the city was without water or electricity.

1939 QUAKE

The quake area centered in Concepcion Province and ran northward toward Talca in the same area where 30,000 died in an earthquake in 1939. Talca is 150 miles south of Santiago, Chile's capital, and about 70 miles north of Concepcion.

The quake's force was estimated at grade 7 on a maximum scale of nine.

(The destructive quake which hit San Francisco in 1906 was measured at 8.25.)

Reports over the police radio said Concepcion's neighboring port of Talcahuano was isolated.

Torrential rains followed the quake.

FIRES START

Fires broke out, one of them in a secondary school for girls. However, this was a school holiday and the buildings were unoccupied.

The Air Force radio said that two persons were killed and four injured in the town of Chillan, a few miles inland from Concepcion.

Concepcion and Chillan practically had to be rebuilt after the 1939 quake, with many of the new structures built of concrete.

Reinforced police were patrolling the streets of Concepcion and ambulances were picking up casualties. It was feared the casualty list would be heavy in the city's old section where the 400 homes collapsed.

Hallinan Alleges S.F. Police Misconduct In Halting Riot

Attorney Vincent Hallinan of Ross yesterday asked San Francisco Mayor George Christopher for a special investigation and punishment of police "misconduct" during last Friday's riots at city hall in San Francisco.

The attorney, who said he was representing two witnesses subpoenaed by the un-American subcommittee, claimed any damage resulting from the fracas should be assessed against the police officers involved.

Hallinan was dumped to the floor during the melee.

He said San Francisco Police Commissioners Paul S. Bissinger and Thomas J. Mellon should be also included in the investigation since they "ratified and approved" the action of police officers turning fire hoses on rioting demonstrators protesting the un-American activities subcommittee hearing.

Mayor Christopher filed Hallinan's letter and recommended any injury or damage complaints be handled through the courts.

Hallinan, who resides at Lagunitas Road and Glenwood Avenue, was recently re-admitted to the bar after a three year suspension for income tax evasion.

FIRE SEASON TO START ON MONDAY IN MARIN

Fire season will start in Marin Monday, after which no open fires will be permitted in the unincorporated areas under county fire department jurisdiction without a special permit, announced County Fire Chief Charles R. Reilley.

For information or requests for incinerator or barbecue permits Chief Reilley requests the county fire department be contacted.

He said property owners living outside city limits or within the boundaries of fire districts should contact their local fire departments for information regarding regulations.

"Be extra careful this fire season," urged Chief Reilley.

Assessor's Policy Gets Legal Backing

The Board of Supervisors adjourned at 1:30 p.m. today without taking any action on delaying the county assessor's reappraisal work.

Marin County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel's bitterly attacked reappraisal program received support in two opinions by the county counsel and by an official of the State Board of Equalization at an emergency session of the Marin County Board of Supervisors today.

Supervisor Vera Schultz, whose District 3 in Southern Marin is getting the brunt of a policy revaluing one-quarter of the county a year for immediate application, indicated early in the meeting that she accepted the legal position that the board has "no legal right" to influence policy of the assessor.

"That is what I have been trying to tell the people," said she after reading a letter from Leland H. Jordan, county counsel, upholding the auditor's independence.

Impassive in the front row of a packed chamber sat her campaign rival J. Walter Blair whose attacks upon her failure to act caused her to request Chairman Walter R. Castro to call the meeting.

From its opening at 10 a.m. the session was stormy, mark-

Corte Madera Taxpayers Unit Favors Bonds

The Corte Madera Taxpayers Committee, which opposed and helped defeat the last two sewer bond proposals of Corte Madera Sanitary District, has swung its weight behind passage of the $900,000 sewer bond issue scheduled to come before district voters on June 7.

This will be the third bond issue placed before voters by the sanitary district since November, 1958. But whereas the two previous proposals were for a new plant for the Corte Madera district, this one provides for expansion of

SPY FLIGHT DEBATE

Herter, Aides Shape U.N. Meet Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter returned today to take charge of administration strategy aimed at defeating the Soviet drive to brand the United States an aggressor before the United Nations.

Herter's arrival from Paris coincided with mounting U.S. confidence that the Soviet Union will be rebuffed in its followup move to exploit the controversial American spy flights into a resolution of censure.

State Department policy makers were reported confident they could defeat the Soviets in both the Security Council and the U.N. Assembly.

The language Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko uses in denouncing the American flights may offer a clue about the future of Soviet-American relations.

When he arrived in New York last night, Gromyko told newsmen the international situation can become "even more aggravated" unless the United States stops its "aggressive acts."

He said it is "incumbent upon the United Nations to devote serious attention to this spy plane matter and to take neces-

Soviets Claim They Forced Plane Down

Reds Take Craft's Nine Occupants Into Custody

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—Soviet authorities announced today they have taken custody of nine Americans aboard an unarmed Air Force transport plane which the Soviets say they "forced down" yesterday in East Germany.

The press officer of the Soviet Embassy in Berlin said he could give no details on how the plane was forced down. He said the Soviet military command in East Germany was handling the case.

Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman, U.S. Army commander in Europe, told newsmen in Berlin he had asked the Soviets to release the nine, but so far had no reply.

NINE ABOARD

Eight men and one woman were aboard the craft when it came down near the Baltic coast town of Kluetz, about 15 miles east of the border, and East Germany police reported last night they had them in custody.

Soviet officials in Bonn and Berlin reported the transfer of the group to Soviet hands.

Aboard the plane, the U.S. Air Force said, were:

Capt. James Palmer Lundy, pilot, of Findlay, Ohio.

Capt. George A. Jorda, co-pilot, of West LaFayette, Ind.

THIRD PILOT

Capt. William Thomas Frewen, Galveston, Tex., a third pilot.

S/Sgt. Leon Porter, radio operator, Russellville, Ala.

S/Sgt. Chester Kenneth Sleezer, engineer, Saratoga, N.Y.

Four passengers aboard were:

Capt. and Mrs. Paul K. McCash, 293 Rockingham Dr., Atlanta, Ga., A/2c James P. Gavin, stationed at Sewart Air Force Base, Tenn., and A/2c James A. Morrison, Richmond, Va.

A U.S. spokesman in Berlin issued this statement: "When it was learned that a U.S. Air Force C-47, on a routine flight from Copenhagen to Hamburg, was missing, Gen. Eddleman, who was in Berlin for the Armed Forces Day celebration here, sent a message to Gen. I. Yakubovsky, commanding general group Soviet forces in Germany inquiring whether the Soviets might have any information on the plane.

REPLY

"Yesterday evening a reply was received from Soviet headquarters stating that the plane 'was landed safely' near Schwerin. The reply also stated that the plane, the crew and passengers were safe and under the control of the Soviet military kommandatura at Schwerin.

"A message was promptly dispatched from Gen. Eddleman to Gen. Yakubovsky requesting that necessary measures be taken to secure the immediate return of the plane, the crew and the passengers."

The East German report of the seizure had said eight persons were aboard.

FIRST WOMAN

This is the first time in a series of similar incidents that a woman has been aboard a U.S. plane landing in East Germany.

Mrs. McCash's husband is an Air Force doctor, stationed at Wheelus Air Field in Libya, North Africa. They were on a morale flight—an annual vacation trip—to Europe. The Air Force said Airman Garvin also was on authorized leave. The others were described as on official business in Copenhagen and Hamburg.

Pharmacy Board Winds Up Hearing

FRESNO (UPI) — The California State Board of Pharmacy adjourned a two-day hearing yesterday without issuing any decisions on some 30 proposed regulations for governing the industry.

Chairman Max Weisberg said the board would decide at a future date whether to hold additional hearings. The agency had been urged to call further hearings in Los Angeles and San Francisco by several druggists and a representative of the state consumer counsel.

The board dropped a proposal to prohibit advertising by drug names on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

During the session Niles Peace, board member from Monterey relinquished his seat on the board and then, speaking as a pharmacist, called on the board to seek legislation to make the advertising of prescription drugs against the law. Chairman Weisberg voiced agreement to Peace's proposal. The rest of the board members, disagreed. They felt also that the board itself had no authority to police such a regulation.

Observances Held Today For Armed Forces Day

Marin County military areas today observed Armed Forces Day with a wide variety of events in the air, on the ground and at sea.

The most varied schedule of events was at Hamilton Air Force Base but those with an interest in Nike installations were seeing them in an all-day series or tours at Forts Barry and Cronkhite as well as a single trip by 25 San Francisco Cub Scouts to Angel Island.

At the forts, Hercules sites were being toured by military vehicle after mess hall assemblages through the day till 5 p.m. The Nike Ajax site on Angel Island could be visited by only one group due to lack of transportation.

Sentry dogs guarding Nike sites were put through jumping acts and obedience trials at Fort Baker.

A wide variety of events at Hamilton Air Force Base started with open house at 11 a.m. followed by fly-bys, band concerts, scrambles, exhibits and a demonstration of how a pilot lost at sea could be rescued by helicopter.

Redwood High Student Body Officers For Fall Elected

Ned Griffith was elected student body president at Redwood High School yesterday as students balloted on a field of 54 candidates for various offices.

Don Deane, running unopposed, was named vice president, and Paula Daly, who had no opposition, was elected secretary.

Others elected were: Dave Ruta, athletics commissioner; Jerry Whitney, election commissioner; Terry Worth, finance commissioner; John Spencer, public relations commissioner, and Judie Block, social activities commissioner.

The "Four Boys," who are Boyd Cahill, Lorin Vogel, Bob Talmadge and Chris Lewis, won as yell leaders. Named song leaders were Rickey Seigel, Merilee Ellis, Esther Tarics, Melinda McCrane, Jackie Moose and Susan Spiller, all members of the "Kick-Offs."

MOUNT MCKINLEY — This is a general view of Mount McKinley, the 20,320-foot peak where five were trapped. At No. 1 four men were trapped, but one, John Day, was taken off and to a hospital. At No. 2, Mrs. Helga Bading, who became ill, also was taken off. At No. 3, helicopters had been landing at the 10,000-foot level. One helicopter, stripped down, finally made it higher up the slope to rescue Day after flying out Mrs. Bading. (AP Wirephoto)

Marin Arts Quartet In Last Concert Of Series

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Last night's third and final concert in the Marin Arts Quartet's 1959-60 series drew the largest attendance of all the nine recitals the quartet has presented since it was founded more than three years ago.

And the program was the most interesting of the three given in the current series at the Outdoor Art Clubhouse in Mill Valley.

High point of the evening was the performance of the Quintet in A Major, Opus 81, by Antonin Dvorak with guest artist Marion Winkler of Larkspur playing the piano part with the quartet members: director Charles Meacham, violin; Cicely Edmunds, violin; Albert White, viola and Jean Mattos Maguire, violoncello.

Mrs. Winkler's style blended beautifully with that of the ensemble, showing the same facility in producing fine nuances of tone color, speed and force that has made previous concerts by the quartet a delight to hear.

An identical feeling for rhythm, too, even in the intricate syncopated passages, was important in the total impression of balance and unity.

Notable for clarity of each note and a staccato touch effective through a wide range of dynamics, Mrs. Winkler's technique was shown to advantage in the Dvorak opus.

Contrasting sharply in character with the quintet and the opening number, Joseph Haydn's Quartet No. 30 in G Minor, Opus 74 No. 3, was the second work, Ernest Bloch's Quartet No. III.

In the adagio movement of the Bloch quartet the musicians showed their skill in one of the real tests of string artistry—playing pianissimo in slow, sustained tones. Another demonstration of competence was in the fugal last movement in which each voice was independently stated in the difficult counterpoint.

Among those present was the late composer's daughter, Lucienne Block Dimitroff of Mill Valley, to whom the playing of the quartet was dedicated.

Haydn's popular "Rider" quartet was interpreted with due appreciation of its humorous character, especially in the final movement.

The quartet and the guest artist received many curtain calls at the conclusion of the concert. There seems to be little doubt that chamber music is growing in popularity in Marin County.

Marin College Students Elect Slate Of Officers

Barry McGough yesterday was elected president of the College of Marin student body, and along with the announcement of his winning, the number of votes he and others received also was announced for the first time.

Irwin Diamond, dean of men and director of guidance, said a student committee had decided that the vote numbers could be released, thus breaking a long-standing policy against publicly announcing such results.

McGough received 126 votes to 94 for Fred Brown.

There will be a run-off election Thursday between Margaret Theil, who received 64 votes, and Daryl Sattui who received 108 for the office of treasurer. Judy Werbelow who received 45 votes was eliminated. A simple majority is needed to win.

No one filed for the offices of publicity commissioner and commissioner of rallies and assemblies. The student government has made no decision on the posts, but qualified persons may be appointed, Diamond said.

Other elected were: Ralph Shanks, vice president, 140 votes, against George McIntosh, 74; Lois Barkowska, secretary, 125, against Cecile Lusby, 89; Mike Kelly, cheer leader, 206, unopposed; Darlene Drago, 116, song leader, against Kay Parmeter, 96.

Town Sets Tough Policy On Open Burning Violators

Those who persist in violating open burning regulations in Corte Madera can expect to "have the boom lowered on them," Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson said today.

A fine of $100, 30 days in jail—or both—is the penalty for open burning of any kind without a permit and outside of the hours of 8 to 11 a.m. A permit may be obtained by applying at the town hall.

"We have been merely reprimanding violators up to now," Nelson said, "but the hazard is too great during the dry season to permit a few to endanger the entire area."

THINGS ARE SQUIRRELLY ENOUGH IN D.C.

OLNEY, Ill. (AP) — White squirrels on the White House lawn? Never, said the city council—at least, not any from Olney's treasured Albino colony of 700.

The city fathers turned down a request by Rep. George Shipley (D-Ill.) that he be allowed to present two of the squirrels to President Eisenhower.

"Public opinion is solidly against it," said Mayor Paul Abegglen. "We are serious where these squirrels are concerned."

Two Killed In Rescue Try On Mountain

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A seasoned helicopter pilot stood by for a second audacious assault on the high slopes of Mt. McKinley today as a massive rescue effort continued after claiming two lives.

The rescue operation was touched off Tuesday night when four men were injured in a 400-foot fall and a woman became ill after they had scaled the continent's highest peak.

A helicopter pilot, a flier and two fellow climbers joined yesterday in completing rescue of the woman and the most seriously injured man.

TWO DIE

Two men were killed in the flaming crash of another plane, which was attempting to drop supplies to the injured.

Helicopter pilot Link Luckett of Anchorage picked up 51-year-old rancher John Day of Central Point, Ore., at 17,300 feet and flew him down to a plateau at 14,500 feet.

"As far as I know, this was the highest landing ever made by a conventional helicopter," Luckett said. He had been turned back by his craft's weight at 17,200 feet earlier in the day, but stripped the 'copter to essentials so he could reach the injured.

WOMAN SAVED

Earlier, Luckett rescued Mrs. Helga Bading, 31, of Anchorage.

Don Sheldon, 38, of Talkeetna few Mrs. Bading and Day to Talkeetna, about 80 miles north of Anchorage, in separate flights of his single-engine plane. The two later were flown to a hospital at Elmendorf Air Force Base at Anchorage. The hospital said Mrs. Bading probably would be released within two days.

William Stevenson, owner of an Anchorage excavating firm, and an unidentified serviceman were killed when a light plane crashed and burned about 200 yards from where the injured men lay.

Student Officers Elected At Tamalpais High School

Stewart Hindley was elected president of the Tamalpais High School student body yesterday.

Hindley will take office in the fall semester.

Others elected were: Alan Eshleman, vice president; Pam Tresnon, secretary; Peter Dodd, treasurer; Steve Clark, rally commissioner; Linda Brown, song leader with group known as Seven-Ups including Karen Baukol, Joelle Mayer, Susie Potter, Debbie Harris and Joyce Dieckmann.

Elected yell leader was Cary Carrillo with the Wee Three including Sybil Cobb and Linda Larson.

Drunk Driver Gets Fine, Probation

Clifford Lewis Sasselli, 47-year-old San Rafael carpenter, must pay $200 fine and remain on six months' probation for drunken driving.

Judge Richard M. Sims of Marin Municipal Court sentenced him yesterday for driving while intoxicated along Jewell Street in San Rafael last May 10. He lives at 10 Jewell

For the next 90 days, he may drive only for work. During probation, he must not drive after drinking.

Member Resigns From Mill Valley Agency

Robert Royston resigned from the Mill Valley Architectural advisory committee at Thursday night's meeting because he is going to Europe for a few months.

His two partners, landscape architects, David Mayes and Asa Hanamoto, have been recommended and their names will be sent to the planning commission for selection. Hanamoto lives in Tamalpais Valley and Mayes in Homestead Valley.

We're Particularly Glad To Have Armed Forces Around

World events have put an added emphasis on the observation of Armed Forces Day.

Usually today is mostly a holiday. The Armed Forces hold open house to play host to the people who pay their bills. They show off their planes and their rockets, their guns and their ships, their training and their facilities.

People go "because I've always wanted to see how a Nike works," or "I've never been inside Hamilton Field gates before."

Now, serious questions cross our minds: Are they good enough? Can they protect us if we need them?

Every one of us wishes we had no need for armed might. Even a defensive force, such as ours, is by nature designed to accomplish destruction. There is and can't be anything constructive about a shell hurtling, a bomb falling or even a rifle bullet singing through the air.

Yet we can be, and we are proud of our armed forces.

We wish we could live in a society which had no policemen. Human beings aren't made that way, so we try to have police departments of which we can be proud.

On the international level, we haven't reached a stage where we can settle our problems by world law. So instead of an international police force, nations have huge military bases spaced at strategic locations throughout the world, their personnel poised to either ward off attack or strike in retaliation.

So long as everyone is on the defensive, we have a stand-off It is the nearest thing to peace we know today. But when one nation or another makes a move that might be interpreted as offensive, tension mounts.

We are rightfully proud of our armed forces, our Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Coast Guard.

Today we pay tribute to them, individually and together. Today we are glad they are as effective as they are. And today, even as we pray we can find a way to eliminate them and their counterparts forever, we are particularly happy to have them around.

The Proverbial Saturday Night

Within the memory of some of us, bathing was a Saturday night ritual. At other times immersion was to be avoided for fear of impairing one's health. Evidently both health and public consciousness of "BO" have improved since grandpa's time.

We may think we are clean (some of the more unwashed peoples claim we Americans have made a fetish of cleanliness), but the Polynesians, who bathe several times a day, doubtless have their own opinion. The advent of the shower has made us appear much cleaner to the Indians and other Southeast Asians who were horrified at the bathtub because one sat in the water in which he washed.

Of all the world's people, the Japanese with their hot water tubs, in which they soak after washing, have made bathing into an art. The daily soak is a great reliever of tensions and is part of Papa-san's welcome home after a hard day at the office or factory.

Probably the most rigorous bathing is done in Finland. There, the peasants have a bathing hut in which they work up much steam and then whip each other with fine willow switches, after which they run out and roll in the snow to cool off. This would seem to be a sure cure for frequent bathing.

Most of the world's people are clean, if they have access to water. Perhaps what some people in foreign countries regard as the "American phobia for cleanliness" is really the result of modern plumbing and the easy availability of water.

Anyway, since whatever we do is damned by someone, better be damned for being clean than dirty.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Kennedy-For-President Clubs Being Organized In County

By CHAPIN A. DAY

The Kennedy-For-President organization has finally reached Marin County.

Last week in San Francisco a kick off meeting was held for Northern California and at least four Marin Countyites were in attendance: David R. Baty of Pt. Reyes, Mrs. Edith Hathaway and Mrs. Verdie Marquardt of Mill Valley, and James E. Broder of Sausalito.

Broder became so enthusiastic he came right back to Marin and organized the first local club of its kind in the county.

Kennedy headquarters in San Francisco says it considers the other three to be potential charter members of similar clubs.

CONGRESSMAN Clement W. Miller is due home next Thursday for some last minute campaigning before the June 7 election. Here are some of his recent votes in the House:

In favor of successful passage of the emergency home ownership act after voting against inserting an anti-discrimination clause.

In favor of the bill providing aid for economically depressed areas, the billion dollar Housing Bill, the Mutual Security Act and its 1⅓ billion dollars in non-military support.

In favor of the 256 million dollar atomic energy construction bill, but against including 107 million dollars in the bill for a linear accelerator at Stanford University.

For a series of bills leading up to passage of the Civil Rights Act. He was one of the 163 Democrats and 44 Republicans who signed the petition demanding discharge of the bill from the Rules Committee.

Failed to vote on the 676 million dollar appropriation bill for the State and Justice Departments.

ONE REPUBLICAN candidate for Assembly now has the support of the first man to announce he would be a candidate against him.

William T. Bagley, San Rafael Republican, has been given the backing of Harold E. Payton, San Anselmo Democrat, who was the first man to announce himself as a candidate for the Assembly and then changed his mind and didn't file his nominational papers.

Payton says he'll "write in Bagley's name on the Democratic ballot and urge all my Democratic friends to do the same."

Bagley also announced county organization leaders in Sonoma County, consisting of 42 persons in 11 communities of the county.

Meanwhile his Sonoma County opponent on the Republican ticket, Supervisor Leigh Shoemaker, was making political hay in Marin County where he says he is "greatly encouraged" by his progress.

ALMIGHTY AFFIRMATION

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Freedom To Believe Fearlessly

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I write this because I want very much to give our Marin County and its people an element of human drama which also might salvage it from the stigma of being a bedroom community.

We have only yesterday (May 15) seen an event which has been labeled as giving a black eye to the Bay Area. There is nothing wrong with getting a black eye, for its very soreness bears out the delicate sensitivity in being human.

I want to thank those students who have gone out on their own to demonstrate to the world at large that there is something very wonderful in being an American.

It is in due time that the vegetating that we as citizens have been nourishing for the past decade, should have a bloom, splendid in coloring, from out of our own youths. What they have done is to stand up and proclaim that it is right and dignified to believe in what one will; and to say that freedom is meaningless when other person's beliefs are subjected, if different from conformity.

And it is only yesterday that we learned that the citizen public can not succumb its own responsibilities to maintain peace in this world. The ideal that has given to the American personality its finest quality "to live and let live," is still the spirit that peoples of other nations seek and find in our populous.

There is no question that certain interests have entered our government through the back door mechanics of archaic constituent devices; and in their turn, practice their will in keeping out citizen participation of individual voices and minority group.

The key to an open environment, with freedom to believe fearlessly as one will, is still our right to vote. It becomes a despicable affair to allow threats upon teachers' private rights and in turn rob them of their means of livelihood. It is a magnificent reaction when the students, themselves, become aware of a responsibility towards their teachers.

If ever our kids needed their parents' support, it is today, to give spirit to the makers of tomorrow.

Assessor Explains Fair Market Value

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

This is in response to a letter to the editor by A. F. Marshall, captioned "Assessor Using Wrong Evaluation" appearing in your May 18 edition.

Mr. Marshall contends that "'market value' is what the property is actually worth, as a loan basis."

We are obliged to point out that loan value has many different interpretations, depending on the loan policy of the individual lending institution, and the legal restrictions placed on the various types of lending institutions, limiting the amount they can lend at varying percentages of full value.

However, all appraisals, regardless of their purpose, do involve a study of current market prices that transfers of property reveal, with the objective of arriving at one approach to value. In appraisal of residential properties, most weight is given to the market data approach.

The law states that properties are to be assessed at "full cash value." The courts have held full cash value to be synonymous with "fair market value." The California Supreme Court has defined market value as "the highest price estimated in terms of money which the land will bring if exposed for sale in the open market, with a reasonable time allowed to find a purchaser, buying with a full knowledge of all the uses and purposes to which it is adapted, and for which it is capable of being used" . . . "the highest sum which the property is worth to persons generally."

In appraising for taxation purposes it is essential that we employ the same procedures and criteria on all classes of property. These methods and criteria must be legally acceptable, in accordance with law, as interpreted by the courts. Hence we use the Supreme Court's definition of market value.

I might add, also, that the State Board of Equalization, in evaluating our appraisals, is obliged to and does apply the aforementioned concept of market value.

U-2 Proves U. S. Bombers Can Penetrate Into Soviet

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There is a threat of war in the fallout from the summit explosion in Paris. There also is a factor of comfort for the American people and their allies.

The factor of comfort is this:

If the U.S. airplane U-2 could and frequently did fly far into the interior of the Soviet Union, then the B-52 bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command (SAC) surely can do so. The United States has about 500 B-52s.

If that is the fact of the matter, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev may not act hereafter as tough as he talks. It will not be news to the SAC pilots that their airplanes with nuclear bombs can penetrate Soviet defenses.

CHARLES CORDDRY can tell you about that. Corddry covers the Pentagon for United Press International. He made another visit a fortnight ago to SAC headquarters in Omaha, Neb.

"SAC officers did not need any proof from the U-2," Corddry said, "that their airplanes could penetrate the Soviet Union and return. They had no doubt about that at any time."

THE AMERICAN people have had doubts, however. Dispute about the adequacy of national defense has developed so many conflicting claims that the taxpayers who pay the bill do not know what nor whom to believe.

The people of the Soviet Union probably were less confused. Their government permitted no public arguments about national defense Khrushchev and his Kremlin associates never varied the party line. They told their people that the Soviet had what was required not only for national defense but for the destruction of any nation which might challenge.

These Soviet citizens must be wondering about that now. Their own premier has proved to them and to the world that a U.S. airplane has overflown Soviet territory from time to time and, on the last flight, was some 1200 miles inside the USSR before it was brought down. How it was brought down is a matter of dispute. But there is no dispute about the fact of deep and repeated high flying penetration of soviet defenses.

So, this question results: Will Khrushchev force the issue of peace or war before he has established satisfactory Soviet national defense against an invasion and nuclear attack by SAC airplanes?

Courthouse Flooded With Calls On How To Dig Bomb Shelters

There's sudden interest in Marin County on how to build bomb shelters and dig holes in hills.

For a while there, the courthouse was flooded with excited calls on what to do and where to go. From what we can gather the latest trend in public thinking is that you don't have enough time to run or evacuate. You've just gotta dig in and take it as it comes.

BUT ON THE whole, life goes on as usual in the county. Like Myron Zwang of Sarrae's, who parked in one of the city parking lots the other day and put a nickel in the meter. Ninety-five cents in dimes and nickels came spilling out onto the pavement.

Moral of the story: It pays to shop in San Rafael.

REMEMBER THE lady in San Rafael who threw bread crumbs in her yard a couple years ago to feed birds, and attracted rodents instead?

She's in the county cell now but still remembers her friends.

They tell me if you watch long enough, you'll see crumbs come flying out the cell window as the happy birds gather around.

FORMER MARINITE Chuck Eischen must feel right at home in Europe. His latest card comes from St. Raphael near Cannes.

And in Argentina, they have a city with a population of about 20,000. It's called San Rafael.

CANDLESTICK PARK is fine, but it surely doesn't help morale when you start up the entrance and some young vendor announces fully:

"You are now ascending Heart Attack Hill."

A PROMINENT local official is noted for his powers of concentration.

He can listen to the ball game with one ear and carry on with the meeting with the other, all the same time.

CITY ENGINEER Dominic Selmi is the father of a new baby boy, his third.

But his colleagues refuse to acknowledge it yet because he hasn't passed out cigars.

GOOD THING radio station KTIM couldn't mail a tape-recording of Marin's views to Khrushchev. What would we do for local news if the Soviets, in retaliation, began jamming our local station!

MARIN ROD and Gun Club may soon have a giant fish-flag flying from the flagpole. They tell me it's a genuine Oriental make, straight from the Hawaiian Islands.

Incidental intelligence: Gordon Dixon just returned from the Islands.

VACATION WEATHER is here again and there are places to go.

Tomorrow afternoon, it's the Mountain Play at Mt. Tam.

Angel Island is only a half hour by a regularly scheduled boat that leaves Sausalito at 10 a.m. on weekends. It may leave more often later on in the summer.

Ike Won Admiration For Taking K's Abuse, Didn't Escape Unscathed

PARIS—At the blood-stained hands of Nikita S. Khrushchev, who loyally helped Stalin murder his way to iron control of the Soviet dictatorship, Dwight D. Eisenhower this week suffered his most undignified, painful, personally humiliating experience as President of the United States.

Though outwardly tranquil and composed, Eisenhower was seathing within as he sat helpless to retort in kind lest he made a bad affair worse.

THE PRESIDENT knew in general what was coming, but he had no advance warning of the fury of it nor the volume of invective and mock innocence to which he was subjected in a statement which the Soviets were later to read to some 3,000 summit journalists from every country in the world.

There was little which Eisenhower could say to shield himself or to deflect the Khrushchev tirade. Eisenhower had himself given the basis of the argument to the Soviet Premier by candidly stating in advance that the U-2 was on a mission of reconnaissance over Soviet territory and by taking responsibility for it.

KHRUSHCHEV'S argument was a total moral condemnation of the United States "for violating Soviet sovereignty by spying." It rested on total moral hypocrisy, the hypocrisy that Khrushchev and the Soviet Union have never engaged in spying or other intelligence activities.

Since all the participants at the conference table had been informed that the reconnaissance flights over Russian territory were "suspended and would not be resumed," it is engrossing to speculate as to why Khrushchev decided to heap such torrential abuse upon the President.

THERE ARE probably numerous motivations, but there can be no doubt that one of his purposes was to so tarnish and undermine Eisenhower's moral leadership as a personal symbol of the world's best hope for a better peace, that the President would be immobilized for the remainder of his term.

My own impression is that Khrushchev so egregiously overstated his case and so abused the rostrum of the summit conference that he overplayed his hand.

The way the President conducted himself under vicious, verbal fire won him the admiration of de Gaulle and Macmillan. The French, German, and British press—some of which relish seeing the Americans taken down a peg — were almost unanimously approving.

But Dwight Eisenhower has never suffered such embarrassing, painful, and harrassing moments as in Paris this week and, diplomatically and politically, he can hardly emerge from them unscathed.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

When Darryl Zanuck commuted between his film studio and his Palm Springs retreat for weekends, he moved his entourage with him. Sam, the barber, who was considered essential (who else would have been there to shave the Zanuck whiskers?) usually drove down with Gus, the butler, but one day he rebelled. "That butler is the craziest driver in California," he insisted. "I enjoy living too much to ride with him anymore." So Sam took a bus. He was dozing peacefully halfway to his destination when there was a horrendous crash, and Sam was showered with shattered glass.

"Some so-and-so has run into us," cried the bus driver. He was right.

And who had run into the bus? You are right. Gus the butler!

The Country Parson

"No wonder it's hard to get our best men to run for office — the way we criticize them after they're elected."

International Situation To Be Sermon Topic

Rev. Charles Carroll, chaplain of the Downtown Chapel of Grace Cathedral in the Mills Building in San Francisco and vicar of the Church of St. Augustine in Fairfax, will preach upon "Not Peace But a Sword" at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow at the Fairfax Women's Club, 46 Park Road in Fairfax.

A former student at the University of Berlin before the war and a member of the staff of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, military governor of the United States for Germany, in Berlin after the war, Rev. Carroll has traveled extensively throughout Western Germany and behind the Iron Curtain in Eastern Germany in recent years.

A long-time student of international affairs, graduate of Yale University and a former teaching fellow in the department of government at Harvard University, he has visited Germany four times since 1945 and spent over two years in Germany in the service of his country and his church.

The failure of the summit meeting, the growing crisis in Berlin and the increasingly hotter cold war will be discussed in detail in the course of his sermon.

Dr. Frank C. Laubach, originator of the teaching method "each one teach one," will speak at the Mill Valley Methodist Church at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

For 30 years a crusader for world literacy, Dr. Laubach has set up literacy programs in 65 countries and estimates his four to 10-day program has helped more than 60 million people to read their languages.

The educator will speak on his philosophy of teaching illiterates and what individuals can do to help teach in this program, and he will give his views on the world situation, Rev. Edgar Nelson, church pastor, said.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, May 21, the 142nd day of the year, with 224 more in 1960.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this date in history:

In 1832, what was considered to be the first Democratic national convention got under way in Baltimore. President Andrew Jackson was nominated for a second term and Martin Van Buren as candidate for vice president.

In 1868, Republican delegates met in Chicago and organized the National Republican Party, nominating Gen. Ulysses S. Grant for president and Schuyler Colfax for vice president.

In 1881, Clara Barton organized the first American Red Cross.

In 1948, President Harry S. Truman sent a special message to Congress proposing statehood for Alaska.

A thought for today: U. S. President Andrew Jackson said: "It is to be regretted that the rich and powerful too often bend the acts of government to their selfish purposes."

Drake Clinches Tie For Pennant

Coach Verle Sorgen's Sir Francis Drake Pirates yesterday clinched at least a tie for the Marin County Athletic League baseball championship and their "magic number" is now one for the undisputed crown.

One Drake victory or one loss by second place San Rafael in next week's final two games will give the Pirates the flag all to themselves. Drake meets Novato Tuesday and San Rafael Thursday. San Rafael takes on Tamalpais Tuesday.

Yesterday's action saw Drake topple Marin Catholic 4-1 on Dave Christian's sparkling three-hitter, San Rafael knock off Redwood 4-2 and Tam go extra innings to nip Novato 6-5.

The results left Drake on top with a 7-1 won-lost record, San Rafael still alive at 5-3, and the rest of the pack all bunched up like a Boy Scout knot-tying class — Tam, Novato, Marin and Redwood each with a 3-5 record.

Christian, a righthanded senior, struck out nine Wildcats, walked three and gave up hits only to Gary Bartolotti, a double, and Mike Quinn and Ron Blum, singles. Blum's first inning solo scored Jack Hendrickson, who had walked and advanced on a fielder's choice.

Paul White and Mike Bresnan each singled home a run for Drake and the other markers came on errors. Hitting safely for the San Anselmo Buccaneers were Jerry Ard with a double and single and Bob Ingram, Steve Anderson, Larry Kline, Christian, Bresnan and White, all with singles.

San Rafael pushed across the winning runs in the seventh inning when Gary Ledson was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on two errors. Bill Roberts scored an insurance run a few minutes later when he walked, stole second and scored on Rich Curry's single. Curry with two hits had two RBIs.

Redwood's runs came in the fifth when Ernie Bray singled, stole second and tallied on a one-bagger by Rich Brear. Brear then scored on a single by John Taylor.

Tam won in the eighth inning when Eddie Collins was safe on an error, stole second and, after Dave Broome walked, scored on a hit by Norm Kreuter. Broome had two singles, one RBI and scored three runs.

Lou Haas' three hits and Jud Bird's inside-the-park homer were Novato highlights.

S.F. Hearts Bleed For Poor O'Dell, No. 1 Hard Luck Guy

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For the first time in four games this year, the Pittsburgh Pirates showed that San Francisco Giants what it's like to walk the plank.

The Pirates beat the Giants 5-4 in 12 innings last night after the Giants had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the 12th.

The loss dropped the San Franciscans a game and a half behind the National League-leading Pirates.

"We were glad to chalk that one up," said Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh, whose club lost three straight to the Giants in San Francisco.

Across the stadium, the Giants were crestfallen. Sam Jones again failed to win on the road. All four of his victories have come at Candlestick Park.

The Giants were disgusted with themselves for allowing Billy O'Dell to take his fourth defeat.

"That kid just hasn't had a break," said San Francisco Manager Bill Rigney.

O'Dell came in to pitch in the eight with the Giants trailing 3-2. Willie McCovey's ninth home run of the year in the top of the ninth sent the game into overtime.

O'Dell pitched four innings of shutout ball and appeared ready to chalk up his second win after the Giants took their 12th inning lead on a double by Andre Rodgers and a single by Hobie Landrith.

The 39,437 fans who stuck the game out in Forbes Field came to life, pleading for the Pirates to rally. They did.

O'DELL LIFTED

O'Dell got pinch-hitter Gino Cimoli on a grounder, but Don Hoak hit an 0-2 pitch up the middle for a single. Then Dick Groat slammed a double to right-center that scored Hoak and tied the game at 4-4.

With the count 1-0 on Bob Skinner, Rigney brought Billy Loes in to pitch for the first time since April 30. Loes walked Skinner intentionally. Dick Stuart then blasted a long fly to left and Orlando Cepeda crashed into the scoreboard to haul it down.

There it was—two out, two on, score tied and Bob Clemente, the league's leading hitter, up to hit. Just one pitch, Clemente slammed it over McCovey's head for a single and the three hour, 23 minute game was over.

Rigney sent southpaw John Antonelli (2-0) to the mound today to face Pittsburgh's Bob Friend (5-1) in the second of the three-game series.

Machen Wins TV Bout, May Go After Liston

NEW YORK (AP) — If the price is right, Eddie Machen is willing to test Sonny Liston's bombs. So said Machen's game manager, Sid Flaherty, after the Portland, Ore., heavyweight contender trounced Alex Miteff of Argentina in a televised 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden last night. An 11-5 favorite, Machen was awarded the unanimous decision.

"We'll take on Liston if the right offer is made," said Flaherty. "It could be the next best thing to that Johansson-Patterson title fight. Then the winner would be in line for the next title fight."

Right now Liston, of Houston, is the crown prince of the heavyweights with 22 straight victories, the last seven by knockouts. Machen, beaten only by world champion Ingemar Johansson and second-ranked Zora Folley, is ranked fourth himself.

"I'd like to keep busy," said the 27-year-old Machen. "I've got a fight in Chicago June 8 against some guy they haven't picked yet and I'd like to keep rolling. Liston would be fine after that. You gotta keep going in this business to be at your best."

Machen, a very trim 190¾ pounds to Miteff's 203, was fast and accurate against the bobbing but slow-moving Argentine. The lithe 6-footer wore down his 6-2 rival with left jabs and left-right combinations to the head.

The officials voted for Machen by the following scores: Judge Bill Recht and Mike Parisi, 8-1-1 each, and Berl, 7-3. The AP card had it 8-2 for Machen.

CHANGE OF HEART

Big Ten Schools Can Accept Rose Bowl Bid

EAST LANSING, Mich., (UPI) —Internal dissension in the Big Ten, which nearly shredded the ancient conference only three months ago, was licked with close harmony today.

The conference in short order yesterday decided: that individual schools could accept invitations to play in the Rose Bowl; to return itself to good standing for national meets and tournaments; abandoned the "noble experiment" of basing aid to athletes on their need, and left the matter of penalizing Indiana to Commissioner Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson.

The whole course of action, which in past days might have required two or three meetings to solve, took less than a day in the conference room. And the harmonious progress came only one day after football coaches and athletic directors completed again in one day, football schedules for two seasons, a chore which often in the past has required two or three meetings.

The clearance for members to accept invitations to play in the Rose Bowl came because Indiana switched to a favorable position.

In March Hoosiers voted against retaining in the rule book a provision which left the option to play to individual schools, if invited.

But the rule requiring action by individual faculties of "substantive matters" forced another look at the regulation. Earlier the conference determined that should an individual member get a bowl bid, it would have to share the receipts with the commissioner's office and other members as in the past, when the conference contracted to send a team each year.

Investors Quit Amateur League Seek NBA Entry

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Investors have withdrawn from the amateur National Industrial Basketball League in hopes of obtaining a professional franchise for this city.

Team President Allen J. Lefferdink yesterday announced the withdrawal in Boulder, Colo. and added that "we want to join the National Basketball Association, but have made no formal application yet.

He said that he was promised when he entered the NIBL that the league would have at least nine teams, but he pointed out that two recent fold-ups have cut the league to seven. He indicated that he thought the NIBL might not survive.

Investors Coach Jim Walsh said here that he thought the team might be able to get in the NBA or another new pro league by the 1961-62 season.

EX-49ER BACK BARNES SIGNS WITH RAIDERS

The Oakland Raiders of the American Football League have signed former Stanford guard Don Manoukian and ex-San Francisco 49er fullback Larry Barnes.

The stubby, 242-pound Manoukian graduated from Stanford in 1957 and has been a professional wrestler since then.

Barnes, who played his college football at Colorado College, was cut by the 49ers in 1958. He has been teaching school in North Platte, Neb., following his release.

Coach Eddie Erdlatz said he planned to use Barnes at defensive end or linebacker. He weighs 230 pounds.

PAUL'S WINS GAME

Paul's team defeated Chapel of the Hills 21-2 Thursday night in the San Anselmo Little League. Yesterday's Independent-Journal erroneously credited Chapel with the victory.

Two Games Tomorrow In Hub Junior League

San Anselmo Junior Baseball League opened today and will move into full swing tomorrow with a double-header on the menu.

Tomorrow's action starts at 1 p.m. with Mariani's meeting Von Rotz while at 3 o'clock it will be Maggi's against Tool-Teria.

In last night's Little League the Rotary beat the Legion 10-6.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Braves Fogged Out; Chisox Boost Lead

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Everyone finally quit in Milwaukee because the fog was like pea soup, but you'd never know it in nearby Chicago where Ted Kluszewski's hitting made it duck soup for the White Sox.

That Milwaukee fog was so thick that you couldn't see your hand in front of your face. More important, four umpires and three Chicago Cub outfielders couldn't see the ball sail over their heads when Cub third baseman Frank Thomas hit an experimental fungo drive out their way.

That did it! Plate Umpire Frank Dascoli called the game between the Cubs and Braves after 4½ scoreless innings. Warren Spahn had allowed four hits up to that point and Cub pitcher Don Cardwell, making his first start since his no-hitter against the Cardinals, had yielded only one hit.

CLEAR VISION

Less than 100 miles away from Milwaukee, however, Kluszewski was "seeing the ball real good" as they say in the dugouts when a hitter has a good night.

Big Klu drove in four runs with a homer and a bases-loaded single to pace the White Sox to a 5-3 victory over the Yankees and fatten their American League lead to 1½ games. Ted socked a two-run homer off Whitey Ford in the third inning and then singled home two more runs off reliever Ryne Duren in a three-run eighth-inning that clinched the victory. Early Wynn was credited with his second victory although he was chased in favor of Jerry Staley in the ninth when Mickey Mantle belted a two-run homer. Turk Lown had to be called in to nail down the final out.

The Indians handed the Red Sox their sixth straight defeat, 2-0, the Tigers edged the Orioles, 4-3, and the Senators-Athletics game was postponed because of rain and cold weather.

DODGERS DOWNED

In the National League, the Pirates moved 1½ games in front by beating the Giants, 5-4, in 12 innings for their fourth straight victory. The Phillies downed the Dodgers, 6-3, and the Cardinals defeated the Reds, 6-1.

Gene Conley and Bobby Del Greco paced the Phillies to their victory over the Dodgers. Conley turned in a five-hitter for his second triumph and Del Greco had 4-for-4, including a double and a triple. Wally Post and Ken Walters also contributed a pair of doubles apiece and Tony Taylor homered to hand Johnny Podres his fourth defeat.

Larry Jackson of the Cards brought his record to 3-5 with a six-hitter against the Reds. Southpaw Jim O'Toole, who suffered his fourth loss, gave up the Cards' first three runs and reliever Jim Brosnan was tagged for the last three.

Mrs. Willkie Wins M. V. Golf Trophy

Hub Chamber Starts Merchant Clinic Plan

A San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce committee will meet Monday in the office of Richard Young at United Market to complete plans for a retail merchants clinic to be held in June, co-chairman Paul LaPointe announced today.

He said the chamber will sponsor the clinics, and speakers' dates and times will be set up by the committee Monday.

ELLIOTT SET FOR DUEL WITH U.S. ACE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Herb Elliott figures he's about ready to run another four-minute mile, and he might have to do it to win his next race.

The scrawny Australian—a run-away winner in the 1,500 meters at the Coliseum relays last night—meets America's dashing Dyrol Burleson for the first time next Saturday in the California relays at Modesto. Burleson, an Oregon sophomore, ran a 3:58.6 mile, the fastest ever by an American, on April 23.

Elliott, who holds the world record of 3:36.0 in the 1,500, won with a 3:45.4 last night after overtaking Laszlo Tabori in the final lap. Tabori, the Hungarian refugee, finished second in 3:46.5.

Dallas Long of USC took the shot put with a throw of 63 feet, 5¼ inches. This surpassed Parry O'Brien's recognized world record of 63-4, but was more than a foot off Long's best effort and well below Bill Nieder's pending world record of 65-7.

DAVIS 'MISSING'

O'Brien dropped out of the event earlier this week because of sinusitis and the ailing Nieder stepped out before the event. Dave Davis of the Los Angeles Striders turned up missing not only from the relays but from town. Word reached the Coliseum during the meet that Davis was in Omaha, Neb., en route to visit an uncle in York, Pa. His father said Dave would continue his training there.

Elliott had said he wasn't going to kill himself here and he didn't change his mind. Whereas he customarily takes command after the second lap or so, he let Tabori set the pace until nearly two-thirds of the way through the final lap, then took over with ease.

"I had nothing left at the finish," Elliott said. Despite this admission that he hasn't yet achieved his best form, Elliott said he is improving and "should be ready for a four-minute mile soon."

SHORT ON WIND

"My muscles are in shape," he said. "It's the heart and lungs that get out of shape and leave you short on wind."

The crowd of 31,566 saw no records broken, but there were some surprises.

Lee Calhoun scored an upset in the 110-meter high hurdles with a hair-breadth victory over Hayes Jones. Both were timed in 14.1.

New Mexico's Dick Howard pressed Glenn Davis in the 400-meter hurdles, but Davis won in 51 flat, beating Howard by a tenth of a second.

Bobby Morrow, a gold medal winner in both the 100 and 200-meter events in the last Olympics, pulled a muscle before the 100 and did not compete. Dave Sime, Morrow's most formidable rival four years ago, took the event in 10.4 on a slow grass track.

Majors Should Boost Player Limit To Ease Fast-Traveling Schedule

CONNOLLY

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up the other night over the fine showing of the Giants. They all agreed the team is the exemplification of the youth movement. An aging veteran doesn't seem to fit into the scheme of things. If he's hitting 30 semesters the consensus is throw him out; make a replacement, but get rid of him.

Maybe that is a good idea. Only a young fellow who has good restraint can keep up with the fast traveling pace organized baseball has been setting for many years.

But in their anxiety to maintain a fast pace, the ball players are allowing the penny pinching owners and the high commissioner of baseball to overlook a very important factor—the player limit allowed each ball club.

For the past 20 years the 25-man player limit has been in vogue. Planes get faster, the two and three-game series has replaced the six and seven-game series; they fly by night instead of daylight; still play 154 games, and have added the cross-country flight to their travel routine. But nobody seems to have paid any attention to the player limit. That has been shushed up, quite mysteriously.

TWENTY-FIVE players to a club might have been okay in the horse and buggy days of baseball. But a big league club today could very easily increase its player limit to 35 men to a club and help the youngsters in baseball from burning themselves out so fast.

I'm conscious of the fact that organized baseball hasn't a fellow like Judge Landis ruling the roost. But it seems to me that the strong players' organization would get a little smart and see the folly of the present 25-man player limit and get some help.

Or maybe the present crop of players feel that by keeping down the player limit they can earn more money. But do they?

The present player limit is ruining the aging clubs and not helping the young clubs.

THE AGING PLAYERS try their derndest to hang on and, when they flatten out, the young star who has been hugging the bench isn't quite ready.

Sooner or later, and I hope sooner, the strong player organization will begin to savvy the layout. The advent of west coast baseball is fattening gate receipts for the poorer clubs not able to maintain plush farm clubs. But actually it is killing them off. The club without an adequate supply of farm clubs burns out rapidly. Take a gander around the National League and you'll find out that only a few clubs have any great amount of young men in active playing spots. Outside of the Giants, who specialize in young talent, the other teams are trying hard, but not very successfully to follow in Horace Stoneham's footsteps.

The best example of a squawking player, in the evening of his career, comes from Carl Furillo of the Dodgers.

For the last few years everybody knew he was on the down grade. Everybody but himself, it seems. Now that they slip him the gate, he starts howling and screaming and before long the Continental League will be taking up the cudgel and organized baseball again will be accused of slave labor tactics.

AN INCREASE in the player limit of big league clubs today would take a lot of the traveling curse off the present hot cross country plane hops.

Bill Rigney might decide that in finishing up a tough series to ship five or six of his players ahead to get in shape or acclimated for the next crucial one.

But with the 25-man player limit he hesitates to cut loose of even one pitcher, for fear he might need him the next day.

Organized baseball is a genuine big business, but has not yet realized that to keep it big, it has to be operated on a basis of impartiality. Right now it seems one-sided.

And it sure is cock-eyed to keep the same player limit that has been in vogue for over 20 years, when everything else in the sport has been brought up to date.

BOXING FINALS

Olympic Coach Cheers Team; 'Tough As Nails'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Tough as nails," declared U.S. Olympic boxing coach Julie Menendez as he surveyed the 10 young men who fought their way onto his squad in last night's elimination finals.

They range from Texas flyweight Humberto Barrera, 18, a switch-hitting Robstown High School senior, to heavyweight Percy Price, 22, a 210-pound Marine corporal from Philadelphia.

The 10 amateurs, including four 18-year-old high school students and three collegians, battled to the top in competition that opened with 2,000 aspirants to the Rome trip this summer. Eight qualified for the finals here.

Only knockout in the finals came in the 178-pound class when Cassius Marcellus Clay, an 18-year-old from Louisville, Ky., stopped 1959 Pan American games heavyweight champion Allen Hudson of Long Island, N.Y.

The results:

112 lb. — Humberto Barrera (Robstown, Tex.) dec. Wayman Gray (Monroe, Mich.).

119 lb.—Jerry Armstrong (Saginaw, Mich.) dec. Oscar German (Muskegon, Mich.).

125 lb.—Nick Spanakos (Burns, Ore.) dec. David Nelson (Mountain View, Calif.).

Cat May Be Descending From Tree

A young cat that has been up a tree in Forest Knolls for five days maybe on the way down today.

The animal climbed from the 100-foot level to the 40-foot level during the night, reported Mrs. Frank E. Tomlinson, neighbor of the cat's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Jensen.

Roy Couts, Marin County Humane Society officer, on learning the cat had started to descend said, "That cat will come down by herself if she's left alone."

All rescue efforts throughout the week have failed only frightening the kitty and driving her higher in the tree.

The Jensens brought the pet from Novato to their weekend house on Linares Avenue last week. Mrs. Tomlinson thinks the cat went up the tree Monday or Tuesday.

The owners had decided to ask Tomlinson to shoot the animal this morning, but changed their minds when they found the cat sitting on the lowest limb meowing.

Couts said he once knew a cut who sat in a tree 19 days.

was to go on twice during the afternoon with an F-101 and and F-104 showing how pilots could intercept enemy flyers with directions from radar sites and the field. Both this and the simulated rescue were explained by public address system.

A couple of 78-year-old Wright era pilots, Oliver Rosto of Oakland and Bob Fowler of San Jose, were to go up with Novato's Mayor Wayne Womack in Air Force jets. Fowler was the first man to fly across the United States, making it in 1911. The three were to ride in a motorcade opening all the events.

Completing the afternoon's events was a retreat parade before Maj. Gen. John Stevenson, commander of the Western Air Defense Force.

Service clubs which are to adopt base squadrons were honored at the base during the day as introduction to this new program.

acres of Fort Cronkhite and 50 acres of Fort Baker, McCarthy learned from DeTurk that the GSA is considering a minimum $60,000 price, about half the assessed valuation.

A private bidder would have to pay at least $584,000 for the 73 acres, McCarthy said, which with $60,000 for the Cronkhite and Barry land would total $644,000.

McCarthy reported "a strong feeling on the part of many people" that the federal government's attitude in planning sale without consulting state and county is both high-handed and arbitrary. He said the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the county planners and the City of Sausalito can act to have the property zoned recreational if it is sold to private interests.

Boat Builder Gets 60-Day Jail Term

A San Rafael boat builder, who gave false information to draw unemployment insurance during January and February, must spend 60 days in jail and make restitution of $738.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court sentenced Robert L. Johnson, 27, of 130 Bayview Drive for violation of the California Unemployment Insurance Code. Johnson was granted work furlough privileges during his 60-day jail term. He must make restitution at the rate of $15 per week.

In claiming unemployment insurance, Johnson said he had no earnings between Jan. 25 and Feb. 29, whereas he had actually earned $518, according to state officials who filed charges against him.

Consideration Of Bay Debris Control Rules Postponed

Directors of the Bay Area Regional Water Pollution Control Board have deferred to their June meeting consideration of calling a public hearing on floating debris control regulations.

Meeting at the State Office Building in Oakland, the board had before it a draft of regulations that would control dumping of debris that will float on the water of San Francisco Bay and its tributaries.

No action was taken because there was not time to go into the regulations fully, a spokesman said. He said probably the regulations will be considered June 16.

The board accepted a progress report from the City of Belvedere, as required by the board's cease and desist order to the city to stop dumping raw sewage into Richardson Bay.

ASSESSOR

ed by comments by Supervisor William D. Fusselman and was often interrupted by applause or cries of "No!" from taxpayers, mostly from Southern Marin.

Jordan's two opinions respectively told the supervisors they couldn't control Broemmel even by withholding funds, and told Broemmel that he had legal backing in his reappraisal policy.

Ronald B. Welch, assistant executive secretary of the State Board of Equalization, backed Broemmel strongly.

"To the best of my knowledge, this is the common practice," he said after analysis of alternates. "It is the practice that we prefer in the State Board of Equalization."

As to whether the state might step in for an over-all jacking up of countywide valuations if dissatisfied with Marin values, Welch said that on basis of calculations only yesterday "there is a distinct possibility that failure to put these (South Marin) values on the rolls would cause action. Failure would probably result in an order from the board to raise for the whole county.

"Next year, if there were failure," he added, "I think there is no question but that an order would be issued."

When Mrs. Tom McDougall of the Marin County Taxpayers Assn. cited figures to show valuations had been increased 100 per cent in five years, Walsh replied "We think market value has more than doubled."

Loud shouts of "No!" came from the audience.

Broemmel opened by reading Jordan's letter which cited court cases in which assessors were upheld on the policy being followed in Marin.

Fusselman asked if Jordan had found cases where appraisals were made gradually but application deferred until the process was finished and Jordan responded that he had merely sought to see if what Broemmel was doing had been upheld; "I'm not saying," he added, "that if another program had been adopted it might not have been supported.

"I am saying that under the circumstances as I know them Mr. Broemmel's program can be supported legally."

Broemmel embarked on a long presentation substantially similar to his statement before the supervisors last week, making the point that he felt it all-important to achieve regional equity.

During frequent objections he was offered a chance to buy one South Marin property either at his valuation, or 25 per cent over the former one. Luncheon time came and went with the board unable to reach a point of voting on any sort of attitude.

Grass Fire Burns San Rafael Area

A fire caused by sparks from an open incinerator burned about 60 square feet of grass and scorched an Oak tree in the back yard of Lawrence Luchetti at 326 Fairhills Drive in San Rafael about 11 a.m. today.

Deputy Chief Vance Trivett of the San Rafael Fire Department said neighbors reported the fire, which was brought under control by one truck and fire crew.

Larry Luchetti Jr., 14, who was home along with his mother when the fire started, said he and two neighbors were squirting the fire with garden hoses when the fire truck arrived.

Luchetti owns a frozen food business in San Francisco.

LUNCH DOESN'T TASTE GOOD? TRY ARSENIC

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A bit tired lately? Lunch didn't taste so good today? Losing interest in building that new hi-fi set?

If the answers are yes, these may be indications of potential suicidal tendencies.

That's the opinion of Dr. Edwin Shneidman and Norman Barberow, co-directors of the University of Southern California's suicide prevention center.

There's always a warning —appetite loss, tiredness, disinterest in hobbies and other changes in a person's habits, the research team said.

Possible Fraud By Lawn Service Man Reported To Police

San Rafael police today were investigating a possible lawn service fraud by a man from San Jose, who charges $11.50 per lawn and takes off after 15 minutes of work.

Two San Rafael women reported that they paid the amount to a man in a pick-up truck, who guaranteed to turn their lawns green with a spray fertilizer. After working on the lawns for about 15 minutes, he drove off, leaving what may be a phony address.

Rowena M. Thornton of 7 Rodger drive and her neighbor, Emily J. Tharaldsen of 3 Rodger drive, said they both had their lawns sprayed. While the man was working outside, Mrs. Thornton called the telephone number listed on the receipt and was told by the operator that there is no such number. When she went outside to see the man, he was driving off in his bluish green pickup truck.

Two-Day 'Youth-O-Rama' In Mill Valley Started Today

Mill Valley started a two-day "Youth-O-Rama" celebration today at Recco 17 where the Mill Valley Optimist Club dedicated an Optimist ball park on the recreation site and launched a program of fun and fund-raising for further development of recreational facilities.

Dedication, conducted by Earl Pascue of Santa Rosa, seventh zone governor for Optimist International, was accompanied by introduction of city officials and music by the Tamalpais High School orchestra.

With this was a tree planting ceremony accompanied by Girl Scout choral group music and the orchestra.

Both this afternoon and tomorrow were programmed by chairman E. Andrew Lax and associates, with this afternoon's events including horseshoe pitching and a hole-in-one contest, a horse show, trampoline, judo and wood bucking acts, scout events and clowns.

Heavy Work–Bank Replaces Safe Deposit Box Units

The old gave way to the new at First National Bank's San Rafael office at Fourth and B Streets Thursday. "But it did so very reluctantly," reported W. P. Murray, president of the bank and its affiliate Bank of San Rafael.

The old consisted of three panels of safe deposit boxes weighing a total of two and one-fourth tons, each section measuring 2-by-4-by-2¼ feet. The new consists of up-to-date replacements.

The change was to modernize the safe deposit vault facilities and to make larger boxes available.

The trouble arose about noon after the old boxes had been ployees of the Herman Safe Co.

The new nests proved an inch longer than the old ones and it was necessary for the two safe men to do some five hours of chipping on the vault's wall surface to provide proper backing for the new installation.

Youngster Taken To S.F. Hospital

The two-week old daughter of Dr. A. H. Anderson, San Rafael chiropodist, was taken by San Anselmo Police last night to the Golden Gate Bridge toll plaza where she was met by an ambulance and taken to Mt. Zion Hospital in San Francisco.

The girl, Barbara Jean Anderson, was suffering from a heart condition, said San Anselmo Police Sgt. James Orr, who drove the baby and her father to the bridge. He said the girl had to go to Mt. Zion because she was under the care of a specialist there.

The baby was reported improving at the hospital this morning.

The Andersons live at 420 Laurel Avenue, San Anselmo.

sary measures to end the policy of provocations and aggression."

President Eisenhower, on returning yesterday from the wreckage of the Paris summit meeting, warned that "more irritations, possibly other incidents" might erupt as an aftermath to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's blowup of the Paris meeting.

But, some authorities, pointing to Khrushchev's relatively mild-mannered language while stopping off in Berlin, said the Soviets might switch to the polite talk of a sorrowful, aggrieved victim.

Shocked public opinion in many parts of the world could have caused Khrushchev to order this softer approach—at least as far as language is involved.

Authorities said Khrushchev's conduct in Berlin, including delaying his threat to sign a separate East German peace treaty, showed the Soviet dictator realizes he went too far in his angry Paris denunciations.

Herter may decide to snub Gromyko and leave the job of handling the American defense to U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

But, if French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd fly to New York for the debate, Herter may have no alternative but to show up too.

A weekend series of strategy talks has been arranged for Herter in order to approve a step-by-step defense counter-attack of the Soviet accusations. The American defense is expected to be threefold:

1. A counterattack by citing the history of scores of Soviet spy efforts in the United States; 2. a reaffirmation of Eisenhower's announcement that spy flights have been called off, and 3. an appeal for a U.N. air surveillance task force to cock potential war preparations in member countries.

Looking toward the future, many diplomats said the Soviet Union's attitude at the East-West talks on nuclear test ban also would provide an inkling about future Soviet policy.

These talks in Geneva were expected to resume early next week. During the hot exchange of words in Paris, Soviet-American scientists continued to meet cordially in the Swiss city to discuss technical problems.

Khrushchev has made it clear he wants to continue these talks as well as the broader 10-nation disarmament discussions which have been postponed until June 7.

Harlan's Estate Left To 2 Sons

The will of the late George Hilary Harlan of Sausalito, attorney and community leader, leaves his estate to be divided between his two sons, John M. Harlan and George H. Harlan Jr.

A petition to probate the will was filed in Marin Superior Court yesterday by the two sons. The petition says the exact amount of the elder Harlan's estate is not known, but it is in "excess of $10,000."

The will leaves $2,000 to Harlan's former legal secretary, Mrs. Myrtle Ballard of San Rafael.

Harlan died on May 7.

Artist Confesses Morals Offense

Mill Valley artist Gideon Sandelin, 47, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of indecently exposing himself at his home Thursday afternoon.

Parents of an 11-year-old girl complained to sheriff's deputies that he had invited the girl in and offered her ice cream and cookies. Then he exposed himself, the girl told parents and officers.

Judge Richard M. Sims of Marin Municipal Court set 1:30 p.m. on June 10 as the time for a probation report and sentencing.

Sandelin was bailed out of jail yesterday for $525.

Paradise Drive Owners Protest Annexation Law

The Paradise Property Owners Assn. has sent a letter to State Sen. John F. McCarthy and the Marin County Grand Jury protesting "faulty legislation on the part of the State of California which allows non-contiguous annexation by sanitary districts."

The letter, signed by former association chairman Albert S. Giesecke, protests the "leap frog annexation" of the northern section of the Paradise Drive area into the Corte Madera Sanitary District.

"We have no complaint with the intent of this legislation but we know through personal experience that the law which permits such non-contiguous annexations should include consideration for the properties being bypassed, Giesecke wrote.

The association recommended ammendments to make mandatory notification of any annexation to all intervening property owners, and where such intervening property is already developed, that property be invited to annex to the sanitary district.

Copies of the letter were also sent to the Marin County Board of Supervisors and the Marin Federation of Improvement Clubs.

He was called "the Bab," meaning door or gate, and it is the "declaration of the Bab" which is commemorated annually.

the Ross Valley Sanitary District plant at Greenbrae to handle Corte Madera sewage.

It would also increase pumping facilities of the Corte Madera system.

Under terms of a 1949 contract, the Ross Valley plant handles Corte Madera district sewage, but with a limit on the amount.

According to Charles A. Miller, chairman of the taxpayers committee, conferences with engineers and state and federal officials convinced the committee that construction of a separate plant at Corte Madera was not the answer to the problem.

"Thousand of dollars will be saved the taxpayers by enlarging the existing facilities at Greenbrae rather than by construction of an expensive and separate sewage plant at Corte Madera," Miller said.

He said there is no way to avoid a minimum tax raise that would result from passage of the bonds. "But a far larger hike in taxes would result through higher cost revenue bonds of special assessments," he added.

A two-thirds majority is necessary to authorize the general obligation bond issue.

Of the $900,000, approximately $400,000 would go toward enlargement of the Greenbrae plant. The remaining $500,000 would be used to enlarge the Corte Madera district lines and pumping stations for delivery of 1,175,000 gallons of sewage daily the Ross Valley district has agreed to handle if the plant is expanded.

The committee reached its decision to support the bond issue, Miller said, after hearing a report on the agreement between the two districts by Harry W. Black, and E. T. Mock of the Corte Madera district bond.

The present agreement between the two districts, negotiated in 1949, allows for delivery of 175,000 gallons of Corte Madera sewage to the Greenbrae plant, Black told the committee. The actual output is approximately 600,000 gallons a day, more than three times the amount agreed upon.

"The new facilities will be sized to handle an additional one million gallons a day," Black said. "Without enlargement of their plant, the No. 1 (Ross Valley) district cannot possibly handle the increase generated by the growth of the Corte Madera district.

"Your sanitary board considered alternate methods of providing the money for the enlarged facilities and we feel the successful negotiation of our agreement with the Ross Valley district provides the lowest cost solution to the problem."

Other possibilities, he explained, would be either short-term revenue bonds, more expensive and requiring only a simple majority vote to pass, or establishment of a special assessment district, which could be established without a vote of the taxpayers.

The cost of revenue bonds would be paid through monthly service charges levied against each homeowner and business establishment. An assessment district would be financed by pro-rating construction costs of the enlarged facilities among the district taxpayers.

The contract between the two districts was renegotiated in March after failure of the two elections which would have given the Corte Madera district its own plant.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D.
Guidance Counsellor

Parents Have Responsibility To See Children's Parties Are Chaperoned

A.E. "We moved here two months ago. My daughter is 14. She was invited to a neighbor girl's birthday party. I warned her against playing "post office," or other kissing games. But she tells me that kissing games were the mildest activity which occurred. The parents who were giving the party were busy in the kitchen. They didn't even try to keep track of what the teen-agers were doing. Are such birthday parties common here?"

Reply. I'm glad to say they are not. A few parents may be foolish enough to let such things happen. Most parents know better. Every party should be chaperoned.

K.B. "Our son is 19. He loves a 17-year-old girl who has epilepsy. When they started dating she had no health problem. Then she was in an accident. Her head was injured. The epilepsy has followed. She has no attacks when she takes her medicine regularly. I'm worried about any children she might have, if my son marries her. Would her children inherit epilepsy?"

Reply. No. Doctors tell me that the types of epilepsy which come from injuries are not passed on to children. They also say that even epilepsy which comes from "hereritary" factors usually is not transmitted. Most people are far too afraid of epilepsy. For information write to the American Epilepsy Federation, 77 Reservoir Road, Quincy, Mass.

L.O. "I'm a girl of 16. I am not married, but I will be a mother soon. The boy I loved ran away. I plan to keep my baby, but everyone advises me to give it up. What do you think?"

Reply. Almost always babies like yours are better off if placed for adoption. Usually their mothers are better off too. I hope you'll reconsider. Please talk about it with a worker in a legally established adoption agency.

Sewer Bond Issue To Be Discussed In Corte Madera

A public meeting to discuss a proposed $900,000 sewer bond election will be held on Monday at 8 p.m. in the Corte Madera Recreation Center, it was announced today by Harry W. Black, Corte Madera Sanitary District board president.

The meeting, at which Black and board member E. T. Mock will speak and answer questions, is to explain the need for additional sewage treatment facilities for the Corte Madera district.

The bond election, set for June 7, would pay for enlargement of the Greenbrae treatment plant of the Ross Valley Sanitary District, which handles all sewage from the Corte Madera district.

TUGBOAT RACE

Tugs, workhorses of the waterfront, built for power rather than speed, hit a top clip of about 12 knots, in the start of the Sixth Annual Miami Tugboat Race. The race over a two-mile course is a highlight of the National Maritime Day activities in Miami, Fla. (AP Wirephoto)

World War II Effects Still Felt By Kin Of Missing Men

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—For millions of Germans, the most terrible war in history is still going on — nearly 15 years after it supposedly ended.

These are the parents, wives and children of more than 2,000,000 German soldiers who vanished without trace during the war.

The soldiers were not reported dead. They were not reported missing in action. They simply disappeared.

The German Red Cross has the names and descriptions of 1,000,219 soldiers who failed to return home at war's end.

More than one million others remain anonymous men simply reported missing.

The Red Cross receives thousands of letters a year from relatives who still live in hope that their loved ones will come back.

But officials say there is little hope that more than a few of them are even alive.

Many relatives, the Red Cross says, accept the grim probability that their loved ones are dead, but they want to know at least how they died.

The majority of the soldiers, Red Cross officials in Munich think, disappeared during the bitter fighting on the Russian front in 1944 and 1945.

In the battle of Stanlingrad alone, they point out, the German Sixth Army lost an estimated 700,000 men — 200,000 killed, 500,000 captured.

Many of the dead were never identified and most of those taken prisoner were shipped to labor camps in the Soviet Union never to be heard from again.

Between 1953 and 1955, Russia released over 20,000 former German soldiers under various repatriation agreements.

At that time, Germany claimed the Soviet Union still held up to 500,000 more.

The Red Cross believes today, though, there is no hope that large numbers of Germans will return from Russia.

Officials say there is no evidence to indicate that very many of the still-missing soldiers are alive in Russia.

The only survivors, the Red Cross believes, may be a few who married Russian women after the war or some who hid from the Russians and later adopted Soviet citizenship.

Thousands more of the vanished soldiers are thought to have died during the fierce fighting in Normandy in 1944.

The Red Cross operates a special tracing service in Munich. When returnees come back — they are still strickling in — they are asked to study the service files to see if they have any knowledge of the missing soldiers.

Several thousand German wives of missing servicemen have since remarried and it still happens occasionally that a soldier returns to find his wife wed to someone else.

These cases are rare, according to the Red Cross. But German law provides for this problem. The woman may decide if she would rather live with her first husband or her second.

STATE HEALTH CHIEF URGES FLUORIDATION

BERKELEY (AP) — California's health director has issued his own "inside story" of upcoming high school graduation exercises:

Nearly every graduate living where water is not fluoridated already has lost one permanent tooth and has an average of 12 decayed, missing or filled teeth.

Noted Dr. Malcolm H. Merrill in a statement:

"Prompt action now to fluoridate the public water supplies in California would assure significantly improved dental health for the high school graduating class of 1975."

Marinites Taking Part In Display

Marin antique dealers and interior decorators are participating in the second annual Decorators Show, under way at the San Francisco Civic Auditorium through next Thursday.

Four Marin dealers are showing antique pieces. They are Heritage House and Town and Country of Sausalito, Nadine Cook of Mill Valley and Carmel Taylor of Ignacio.

Helen Friedman of Lucas Valley is displaying a room corner decorated with antique pieces and a contrasting contemporary setting in the decorators' portion of the show.

The show is sponsored by the Northern California Chapter of the National Society of Interior Designers, and is open daily from 1 to 11 p.m.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Japanese Protest

TOKYO (UPI) — About 7,000 leftwing unionists massed outside Premier Nobusuke Kishi's home tonight to protest ratification of the U.S.-Japanese security treaty and demand that he resign.

The mass visit to Kishi's home climaxed a day during which 20,000 persons had taken part in scattered anti-treaty demonstrations in Tokyo.

Discrimination Hit

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Evangelist Billy Graham said last night racial discrimination is one sign of a general moral decay that could lead the United States to destruction.

"The race problem in the South has reached the point of no return," Graham told the closing session of the Southern Baptist Convention.

He warned that if Southern Baptists, who outnumber all other denominations combined in the South, fail to provide leadership toward better racial understanding, "the next generation could well turn against the church."

Kefauver To Run

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Estes Kefauver will formally announce for re-election today and embark on the most crucial campaign of his political career.

The Tennessee Democrat plans to file for re-nomination in Nashville and announce his plans at a press conference.

Kefauver's opponent in the primary will be Judge Andrew (Tip) Taylor of Jackson, who ran a strong second when Buford Ellington was nominated for governor in 1958.

TV Crackdown Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has announced plans for a team of special investigators to crack down on corruption, deception and failure to operate in the public interest by the nation's radio and TV stations.

The move was the firmest taken by the commission since congressional investigators began turning up evidence of payola, rigged quiz shows and hidden commercials.

Export Study Ordered

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown has asked for a study of European markets in an effort to increase California exports to Europe.

Brown yesterday asked Adolph P. Schuman, chairman of the San Francisco World Trade Center Authority, to investigate European markets during a trip Schuman will start next week.

Rail Strike Blocked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower has blocked for at least 60 days a threatened strike against the Pennsylvania Railroad, the nation's largest.

Eisenhower created an emergency fact-finding board yesterday to investigate a contract dispute between the rail line, the Transport Workers Union and the AFL-CIO Railway Employees Department, bargaining agent for a number of other unions of non-operating rail employees.

The board also will recommend a settlement. Its recommendations will not be binding, however.

Taxable Sales Soar

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Board of Equalization has announced an "unprecedented" rise in first quarter taxable sales of $5,300,000,000 for 1960.

The board said yesterday the total to March 31 was 8 per cent higher than figures for the same quarter in 1959.

Pasternak Failing

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian author Boris Pasternak is in serious condition after suffering a relapse.

He had been reported making a recovery following a heart attack and stomach hemorrhage.

It's 'Miss' Chief Editor

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—For the first time in 80 years a girl, Linda Greiner, has been named chief editor of "The Tech," student newspaper at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

A senior from Barre, Vt., Linda directs a staff of 60 men. She is majoring in industrial management. At M.I.T. there is only one woman student to every 60 men.

Property Taxes Up

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Californians paid 10 per cent more local property taxes during the 1959-60 fiscal year than they did the year before, for an average of $130 per person.

The total was $1,990,497,000, the State Board of Equalization said yesterday. The board added that tax levies have risen 10 per cent, almost twice as fast as assessed valuations at 5.7 per cent.

School district taxes showed the biggest increase, 11 per cent for a total of $945,876,000. County taxes were up 9.5 per cent for a total of $653,509,763. City property taxes totaled $271,145,000.

Quake Jolts Manila

MANILA (UPI) — A 10-second earthquake swayed buildings in Manila at 4:18 p.m. today. There was no report of casualties or damage.

Hiker In Kansas

CHEYENNE WELLS, Colo. (AP)—Sixteen days of tough walking over Colorado mountains and plains were behind Dr. Barbara Moore today as she prepared to hike across Kansas on her San Francisco-to-New York trek.

Dr. Moore crossed the border into Kansas late yesterday but was driven back here to spend the night.

"It shall be comparatively easy from now on," the 56-year-old vegetarian told reporters. "Everything is so flat. I shall be in New York by June 10, even if I must walk night and day."

S.F. Population Static

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — District census supervisor Thomas Gosland says San Francisco's population will not show much of a change from 1960's 775,357.

With a preliminary report due in 10 days, Gosland says the population shouldn't vary by more than 10,000.

Studio Curbs Loom

STOCKTON (AP)—Legislation to protect the public from unscrupulous health and dance studio business operations will be introduced in Sacramento next year, the chairman of an investigating subcommittee predicted yesterday.

Assemblyman William Biddick (D-Stockton), chairman of the Assembly Interim Judiciary Subcommittee, said he hopes the Legislature will attack the problem by regulation rather than licensing.

Korean Plot Bared

SEOUL (UPI)—A former police lieutenant sentenced to death for trying to kill former Vice President John M. Chang said today the plot was hatched by a number of high officials including the late Lee Ki Poong, No. 2 man in President Syngman Rhee's Liberal Party.

Lee Duk Shin told police interrogators that plans for the assassination were worked out by former Interior Minister Lee Ik Heung and Im Heung Soon, then chief of the Liberal Party's general affairs department, and approved by Lee Ki Poong.

'Copter Crews Saved

HONOLULU (AP)—Helicopters were involved in two separate Pacific stories yesterday — a rescue of nine ditched 'copter crewmen and the transfer of an injured sailor to the luxury liner Monterey.

Two Marine helicopters carrying the nine crewmen ran out of fuel and ditched in the ocean off Kauai Island. The men climbed aboard life rafts dropped by rescue planes and then were picked up by two other helicopters. None was injured.

The Matson company reported that the Monterey, en route to Honolulu and San Francisco from Samoa, responded to an emergency call from the amphibious ship Eldorado. A helicopter carrying seaman Larry Joe Arnold, 21, Dexter, Mo., landed on the liner's sports deck. Arnold was suffering from a head injury.

Report Estimates Marinites Chances Of Fallout Survival

If a nuclear bomb fell on San Francisco, the "probably fatal" area includes only the southern tip of Marin County, according to a report just published by the Stanford Research Institute.

Because of many questions received by county officials from Marin citizens who want information on atomic survival, County Administrator Donald A. Jensen has ordered 500 copies of the Stanford Research Institute report, which came out in March of this year.

The report includes a map showing probable fallout danger. The "probably fatal" area includes Sausalito and part of the Tiburon Peninsula.

The area from that point northward to about Lucas Valley lies in the "illness" area. The rest of the county, north and northwest Marin, are in the "safe" zone.

The fallout danger is to the south and east rather than to the west and north. The Stanford report says stratospheric winds (not surface winds that you can observe) determine the direction of fallout.

The report shows Marin to be fortunate as compared with the Peninsula and East Bay. The "probably fatal" area runs south from San Francisco to south of San Jose, and east through Contra Costa and San Joaquin Counties. The "illness" area covers Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, Stanislaus and southward.

In Marin, only the southern tip is in the "probably fatal" area, about half in the "illness" area and the rest "safe."

Won't Hamilton Air Force Base be one of the first targets? Not likely, says the Stanford report. "A surprise Soviet attack would almost certainly begin with a strike on Strategic Air Command bases (e.g. Travis or Castle Air Force Bases) and missile sites. Secondary military targets would include naval installations and interceptor air fields (e.g., Hunter's Point, Hamilton, Treasurer Island, Alameda, and Moffett Field.)"

"Since surprise is the greatest importance in attacking retaliatory bases, SAC targets would undoubtedly be struck first, thus giving warning time to other targets even if the initial attack were not detected until weapons fell." Therefore, some warning time is likely in other areas, says the research institute report.

"From the time of weapon detonation, fallout requires about a half-hour to pile up to a dangerous level on the ground. This time, then, is available for taking protective action, even under the worst warning condition.

It is up to each family to decide whether to evacuate or take shelter, says the report.

PUC Sets Hearing On Gas Rate Hike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Public Utilities Commission yesterday set June 15, 16 and 17 for a hearing into the $26,615,000 annual gas rate increase asked by Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

PG&E said $9,821,000 will go toward meeting higher rates charged by El Paso Natural Gas Co. which supplies the California firm. Most of the rest would cover increases in wages, taxes and interest on bonds, the company said.

MEETING

only a regional meeting of Northern California county employees had become a special statewide conference up to this afternoon.

This afternoon saw representatives of more than 20 northern counties get down to the business which normally would have occupied the full meeting time. Two workshops were held, one dealing with salaries and the other with civil service.

Following completion of these sessions the convention was to end with a social hour.

William Horton of Stanislaus County was in charge of the statewide sessions yesterday and this morning, with assistance by William L. Desmond, president of the Marin chapter and a member of the Marin County Sanitation Department.

Handling convention arrangements generally was Leona Meysenbourg, treasurer for the Marin association, while Mrs. Frances Bahl was in charge of registration. Both are with the Marin County Health Department.

Seminary Theater Unit Presents 1st Production

By PAUL MILLER

For its first production, the newly formed Seminary Theater Circle chose a difficult play in "Sign of Jonah," presented Wednesday and last night in Alexander Hall at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The one act play is the scene of a trial in Germany in which those guilty of World War II atrocities to the Jews are to be found and condemned; and in a larger sense the trial is to find those guilty of war itself.

The playwright, Guenter Rutenborn, a German minister, has injected his surrealistic work with sweeping omnipotent passages after the manner of T.S. Eliot, mild profanity and blunt and sometimes unfunny humor, forcing some scenes to resemble a local city council meeting.

This is probably due to the theme (every person is guilty of war and its extreme cruelties) and Rutenborn's attempt to dramatize it by overwriting. The sarcasm is too sarcastic, description is too general, the humor is at times irrelevant and the technique of having actors come out of their parts and directly address the audience is used too often.

The play might have been balanced by many of the parts being under-played.

Only two of last night's actors seemed to have sensed this. The most credible performance was given by Jon Sinclair, a first-year seminary student. He played a merchant who even though he lost his family in the war and was not connected politically or militarily with the German brutalities, was still considered guilty along with all the others. Sinclair by good timing and a subtle performance made the merchant one of the more colorful characters, who without Sinclair, might have been the most dormant.

Actor Jim Speer, a second-year student at the seminary, seemed to be aware that what the parts needed least, but had the most of last night, was shouting. Speers applied some quiet gesture and a practiced unseriousness to his part as the Angel Raphael and gave a minor character a major role.

The whole cast may be complimented for its performance in the most climactic and perhaps the play's most profound portion in which Jonah, a veteran German submarine commander who had been "belched" out of a trapped submarine when he promised "to witness for God." And the Average Man, asserts along with others at the trial, that God is ultimately the guilty one. They claim God must have a son die like the Average Man's son died in the war, and have him suffer like Jonah suffered in the "hellishness" of the submarine.

This moving scene of an allusion to Christ's birth as a man-God, death in suffering and acceptance of guilt, though innocent, was impressively presented to the audience by actors who seemed to want to put this part of Rutenborn's message across well for its own sake.

Director Jennette Gudgel, who has done the play with other groups, should be commended along with her cast and stage manager for taking on a timely, important and complex play.

New Cal-Vet Loan System Put Into Use

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The State Veterans Affairs Department, moving to trim the backlog of loan applications, has adopted a new priority system for Cal-Vet farm and home loans.

Joseph M. Farber, director of veterans affairs, announced the new method. He said it will permit veterans to go ahead and move in while awaiting final action on their loans.

In the past, applicants for loans have filed a priority card, then waited six months to submit a financial statement and description of the property they want to buy.

With applications coming in at the rate of 2,100 a month and only 1,350 loans granted each month, a backlog of 17,000 applications has built up.

Under the new system, the statement and description will be filed at once, allowing the department to determine immediately if the applicant is qualified and the property eligible.

MARIN'S BOY SCOUTS are a busy bunch of young fellows these days as they prepare for their big Scout-O-Rama, to be held June 4 at Hamilton Air Force Base. And among the busiest are the members of Troop 25 of San Anselmo, who are planning a display of traps and snares. Above Joe West is at work on a "twitch-up" noose. In next week's Marin Magazine Joe and his fellow Scouts will give you a preview of other traps, both simple and intricate, which they will show Scout-O-Rama visitors.

Jazz Festival Could Develop Into One Of Marin's Biggest Events

WALLY RAY of KDIA, one of the most musically knowledgeable of our Bay Area disc jockeys, is of the firm opinion that Marin is missing a good bet if it doesn't get strongly behind the College of Marin Jazz Festival and boost it into greater prominence.

As impressed as we were with the musicianship displayed by the collegians at last weekend's jazzfest, Wally noted that "Marin has something here that is already significant and could be built into something really big if people get behind Tom Chesnut and the college."

With wider publicity, greater patronage and community-wide enthusiasm, the festival could, indeed, become a big event. Marin is already in on the ground floor with the college jazz festival idea.

But Monterey has scheduled a similar event this year—for next weekend. And with that city's great jazz tradition, the Marin festival is certain to be in for some strong competition from that source.

Already suggested and tentatively approved has been the addition of a high school division to the Marin program. Also already heard has been a proposal that folk singing might be incorporated into the event.

Stretching the program to four days and climaxing it with a Sunday afternoon outdoors concert featuring at least one big "name" guest jazz artist or combo might be another possibility in the not too distant future.

Participation by college jazz bands or combos from more distant West Coast points such as the Southlands or the Pacific Northwest might be another goal.

At least we agree with Ray that the jazz festival has almost unlimited possibilities and that Chesnut deserves all the community assistance he requires in order to develop those potentialities in future years.

ANYONE WHO has had any connection with a little theater production knows what a time-consuming undertaking the direction of a musical or drama is.

Consider, then, the activities of Leslie Abbott of Sausalito.

As Marinites know, he's the driving force in Sausalito's Gate Playhouse productions. But not so well known here is the fact that he's also a director with two other theater groups—the San Jose Light Opera and the Comedia Theater of Palo Alto.

An Abbott-directed musical comedy, "Where's Charley?," is the current attraction at the Gate. At Palo Alto Abbott has two productions, "The Boy Friend" and "Babes in Arms" showing. And his "Finian's Rainbow" by the San Jose Light Opera has just closed its run.

In addition, Abbott is currently conducting rehearsals for new shows at both the Gate and the Comedia.

And he has been retained to produce the show for the 1960 Santa Clara County Fair and will begin that assignment in the late summer.

As if all this were not enough, Abbott holds down a part-time job at Sausalito's Alta Mira Hotel.

Says Abbott: "I'm coming and going so fast that sometimes I can hardly get home in time to take off again.

INCIDENTALLY, "Where's Charley?" has our personal endorsement as an excellent way to wash away your cares.

The young Gate Players and their director seem to have just the right touch for musicals—and "Where's Charley?" rates among their best.

Pay particular attention to a young San Francisco State student by the name of Jerri Burnett. We've seen her in previous Gate musicals. And we're convinced she has a bright feature as a comedienne.

THANKS TO traveler Sid Braverman, we're able to bring you a preview of what's upcoming in fall furniture trends.

THE FIGHTING BELLBOY

To His Fans, He's Still 'The Champ'

By JIM GILMARTIN

"The fight business is rough, but I loved every minute of it. To get anywhere you have to be 'hungry,'—by that I mean, well, you seldom, if ever, see a rich man's son or college graduate as a champion.

"And another thing: there's no room for mercy; it's a battle of survival, either you or the other guy. Sure, I was rough—I wanted to get rid of the other guy in a hurry—but I was never intentionally dirty."

The man speaking is an authority. He was hungry and rough and talented enough to batter down and slice up enough opponents to rise to the peak of his profession—middleweight boxing champion of the world.

He is Fred Apostoli of 31 Wood lane, Fairfax, Calif. He is 47 years old, married, father of a son, grandfather of a boy and girl. Present occupation: part-time fight trainer; full-time owner of The Meadows Tavern, Ignacio. Education: School of Hard Knocks, Master's Degree.

APOSTOLI WAS one of the ring's finest because he was, primarily, a hungry fighter. Motherless at the age of five, he knew heartbreak and poverty. He was "farmed out," so to speak, to relatives, friends and a boys' home early in life by a father who simply could not support him and his brother, John, older by two years. At an age when your boy is playing baseball or football or swimming or downing sodas as the neighborhood creamery, young Freddie Apostoli was working hard at a ranch. He never knew the thrill of cap and gown and "Pomp and Circumstance" for he quit school after the ninth grade to support himself.

So, you can well imagine it was a very hungry Fred Apostoli who, on the night of Nov. 19, 1938, stepped into the Madison Square Garden ring and proceeded to conquer the man who stood in the way of his boyhood dreams—a championship!

That Apostoli was merciless in his intense desire to reach the top that night is detailed in the following United Press dispatch:

"Fred Apostoli of San Francisco, lashing out with the fury of a maddened mule, scored a technical knockout over Young Corbett III tonight, thereby winning New York State's recognition as world middleweight champion.

"Referee Eddie Josephs awarded the bout to Apostoli after 2:01 of the eighth round when Corbett sank to the canvas without being struck.

"Corbett was in such agony from three previous trips to the floor he was unable to continue. Young Corbett took the worst beating of his 18-year career. Many of the 7500 fans were screaming 'Stop it! Stop it!' "

The "maddened mule" smiled the other day when we showed him the yellowed clipping at his comfortable residence. "Yes, that was a pretty exciting time in my life," he recalled while relaxing on the edge of his swinmming pool.

AND INDEED it was eventful. The records show Apostoli fought 50 amateur bouts, losing only one of them, before turning professional. In the prize ring he fought 75 times, winning 64, including 31 by knockout and 33 decisions with one draw. Of his 10 losses, four were by knockout.

Although the then (and again) muddled middleweight championship situation never gave him universal recognition as champ, Apostoli beat all those who laid claim to various versions of the title.

For example, in 1937 he knocked out France's Marcel Thil, who held the European version of the crown. In 1938 he knocked out Freddie Steele, the National Boxing Assn. champ, but it was in a non-title bout and the San Franciscan never again got a shot at Steele. Apostoli then ripped apart Young Corbett to grab the New York version.

1938 proved to be a big year, for Apostoli also became a bridegroom, marrying his childhood acquaintance, the former Yolanda Bini after a courtship of ". . . a couple of years."

Mrs. Apostoli gave birth to a son, Frank, the following year. Today Frank, now a butcher at the New Mission Market, his wife and their girl, three, and son, eight months, are next-door neighbors on Wood lane. Frank, by the way, never aspired to a ring career.

RETURNING to the height of Apostoli's career, he held his title until Oct. 2, 1939, when he suffered a technical knockout at the hands of Ceferino Garcia. In those days the "return clause" contract was unheard-of, so Apostoli never again fought for the title.

However, he continued fighting "big time" until 1941 when the biggest main event of them all—World War II—interrupted his career for 54 months of Naval duty, another glittering chapter of his life that will be highlighted later.

At war's end Apostoli, then 33 years old, returned to his first love in a comeback that lasted about 14 or 15 fights. When Earl Turner knocked him out in Oakland in 1949, he decided to call it quits.

Fred has kept a hand in boxing. He's served as a judge and official, and presently is training lightweight Irish Bobby Scanlon, while also keeping an interest in his tavern, the Meadows at Ignacio.

But more of that later. Let's go back to the very beginning, Feb. 2, 1913, when Alfredo Apostoli had his first weighin, the second son born to Emilio, a carpenter, and Beatrice Apostoli.

Tragedy struck the Apostoli household in 1918 when the mother, then aged 26, died of pneumonia. From there you find the "hungry" instinct that flowed through Freddie's veins.

At the age of five he and his brother, then seven, were sent to live with grandparents.

Four years later the boys were enrolled in Father Crowley's "Youth Directory," a boys' home in San Francisco.

"That's really where I learned something about boxing," the ruggedly handsome Apostoli smiled. "You had to fight or get run over. That's the way the boys found out who was boss. Sure, I had plenty of fights—and, I won most of them."

LIFE WAS no bed of roses at the home. Up at 6 a. m., in bed by 9 p. m. After six years of this routine, Alfredo Apostoli was pitched out into the world. He went to a chicken ranch at Occidental, near Santa Rosa, where he worked for an Italian family for two years. Work, work and then more work. Only once did Apostoli leave the ranch—and that was to a ball game in Occidental.

Apostoli stayed at the ranch two years, then returned to San Francisco for a year at Francisco Junior High, where, by the way, Joe DiMaggio got some of his early education. Freddie quit after his freshman year to tackle an assortment of jobs — plasterer, sheetmetal worker, carpenter's assistant and pig-tender up Stockton way.

Somebody finally landed Fred a job as messenger boy for a San Francisco jewelry firm. That was his first good break because it was through this job that he met a Joe Niderost, and it was Niderost who introduced him to the Olympic Club where boxers were being trained. Niderost also got his young protege a job as operator of the freight elevator at the St. Francis Hotel. He later was promoted to the passenger elevator and then to a bellboy's job and finally bell captain. Hence, his boxing nickname of "The Fighting Bellboy."

In the meantime Apostoli was learning the rudiments of boxing from Olympic Club coach Spider Roach. In 1933, Freddie won his first honors in a junior welterweight tournament. He stopped all five boys in his class. Progress was rapid and in April of 1934 this kid won the national amateur middleweight title in St. Louis, highlight of his 50-fight amateur career which saw him lose only once. On that same night in St. Louis in 1934, incidentally, a young man named Joe Louis from Detroit won the national amateur lightheavyweight crown.

After grabbing all the amateur honors within reach, Apostoli turned professional in 1934 and went on to win a string of preliminary bouts under the management of Niderost. The first mistake Niderost made was matching his rising young star with the veteran Freddie Steele of Tacoma, the same man who four years later succumbed to Apostoli's kayo punch. Anyway, Steele stopped Fred in the 10th round of their first meeting, and Niderost decided to turn the management of the green kid over to a veteran ring expert, Larry White.

FROM THERE, big things happened, and Apostoli was punching his way up the fistic ladder in an era when boxing talent was reputedly much greater than it is today.

Apostoli does not like to toot his own horn, but he admitted under questioning that he thinks he could be the world champion again if at his peak today. "In fact," he offered, "anyone of the top 10 middleweights in my time could be a champion today."

"Boxing, he went on, "is not very promising. There are no good prospects. The fighters today don't have the constitution of the boys in my day. They don't like the work. Heck, I used to get up before dawn every morning, run through Golden Gate Park and take a dive in that ice cold ocean. Then I'd run back home, dress for work, spend all day on the job, and then train after work. I was in perfect condition for all my fights." (He still looks trim enough to go 10 fast rounds).

Of today's flock of fighters, Apostoli says Sugar Ray Robinson and Archie Moore are the best of the lot ". . . and they're both over the hill."

Those who saw Freddie at his peak claim he had all the good stuff. Expert boxer, good defense, enough poten-

PRISON DOC

He Made The Con Holler 'Kamerad'

(Editor's Note: Dr. Leo L. Stanley was for many years chief medical officer at San Quentin Prison. His recollections of his experiences while serving in that capacity have appeared in past issues of your Marin Magazine, and more will appear in the future.)

By DR. LEO L. STANLEY

Whiz! Bang! Thud!

A heavy Indian club, hurled at my head, missed the mark, struck the wall behind me and fell at my feet.

I was really up against it that morning, actually cornered. Three desperate men, murder in their eyes and with the intent to kill me, had me where they wanted me. And I fully knew they meant me harm.

On this day I made the rounds alone in the tuberculosis ward at San Quentin Prison. Ordinarily several of us doctors with ward attendants visited every patient in our newly built open air hospital of 60 beds.

TUBERCULOSIS had been my number one concern. This was due particularly to the fact that my young wife, within months after we were married and soon after I got my medical degree, developed this dreadful, frightening and disheartening disease. It was discovered soon after I became resident physician at San Quentin. Her prolonged illness of over 13 years was one of the main reasons I stayed on at the great penal institution. Here I could be near her. And here, too, was furnished domestic help from among trusted prisoners.

To carry on my practice I did not have to leave the reservation and could be at her side on a moment's notice. No wonder I wanted to fight tuberculosis and do what I could to combat it.

When I came to San Quentin the medical facilities were painfully inadequate. There were 20 cases of tuberculosis, all housed in a dismal, dark and forboding old stone building, one of the first to be erected in 1859. The surroundings were sordid, the facilities woefully inadequate and morale was at a very low ebb.

I inaugurated a system of thoroughly examining every entrant to the prison. And by doing the same for every current inmate, as time allowed, we were able to discover many new tuberculotics who were roaming the yard carelessly spewing germ-laden sputum among their fellow prisoners.

WITH THE unstinting encouragement of Warden James A. Johnston and an enlightened and sympathetic board of prison directors, we were able to build an open air hospital of 4,800 square feet on top of some flat stone buildings on one side of the main plaza later called "The Garden Beautiful."

Any prisoner who showed the least signs and symptoms of lung disease was hospitalized for study and treatment.

Sick people have a right to be peevish, dissatisfied and complaining. And when one is confined in prison, the likelihood of discontent is greater.

And again my clientele were not Sunday school teachers. Murder, rape, burglary, violence, robbery and crimes against person and property had brought them to the penitentiary. They could not by any means be termed good men. And "a con with the con" could be bad medicine.

As head of the medical department I naturally had to make rules and regulations for my patients. They were, of course, some restrictions for them. And some of these were not to their liking.

I felt that tobacco was detrimental to their health. Certainly smoke with its tars, its nicotine and possibly other toxic substances was not soothing or healing to already diseased lung tissues.

THE "WEED" was smuggled into the hospital. Frequent searches were made, tobacco found and confiscated. And in these searches other contraband, money, knives, blackjacks, socks filled with lead, clubs and other deadly weapons, were unearthed.

Naturally there was great resentment toward me.

John Doe, oddly enough that was the name he really carried, was a big six-foot Negro in for murder. Blackie White, a medium-sized white man, was doing time for assault and robbery. And there was Heinie Housman, not long in this country from Germany and convicted of burglary. None of them could be considered a good boy.

I knew they did not like me. And I should have had better sense than to go alone into the ward that morning.

Preparing to go downstairs I saw these three ruffians approaching me. Doe had his hand behind his back as though concealing a knife.

Blackie had some object under his dressing gown.

And Heinie did not even try to conceal the Indian club, one of which we permitted in the ward for mild exercise.

There was no escape for me. I could not make the stairs. It was useless to make an outcry.

ALL I COULD do was to back into a corner with all three slowly coming in for the kill.

Heinie Housman was too eager. He wanted to be the first to deal the death blow. It was then that he threw the Indian club at my head.

Quickly stooping and grabbing the Indian club, I started after them. I struck Doe over the head. He retreated. A kick to Blackie's groin doubled him up. Heinie retreated. I caught him by the collar and landed a blow over his head.

It was then that he began to holler "Kamerad, Kamerad," the cry that his countrymen were to sound so many times when they were up against it in World War I.

With him in front of me, I pushed him down the stairs en route to the captain's office.

Prisoners in the yard gazed wild-eyed in amazement to see "The Croaker," Indian club in hand, escorting a con "to the Porch."

THE GARDEN BEAUTIFUL was what this spot was called, bringing floral color into the drabness of the prison. Dr. Leo L. Stanley spearheaded the location of an open air hospital for tubercular patients on top of some buildings to one side of this plaza. Previous TB facilities had been housed in the old stone building, erected in 1859.

HER DUFFLE BAG all packed, College of Marin student Marie Smeltzer, from San Francisco, is eager for another summer of service as a counselor at the Camp Fire Girls' Camp Kilowana in Napa County. (Independent-Journal photo)

CAMP KILOWANA counselor Linda Smith scrubs the face of one of her "little sisters" at the 1959 summer camp. The college girls keep close watch on their young charges.

She Has The Perfect Summer Job

It's More Like A Vacation, Says Coed Who Serves As 'Big Sister' To Camp Fire Girls

By DON KEOWN

With summer vacation once again almost upon them, scores of Marin girls, their ages ranging from 7-year-old youngsters into the teen-ages, are once again looking forward to happy days at Camp Kilowana.

Camp Kilowana is the Camp Fire Girls camp located on the Norman B. Livermore property on the northern slope of Mt. St. Helena in Napa County.

The site is just two miles from old Silverado City, once a flourishing gold-mining center. But Silverado was already a ghost town when Robert Louis Stevenson spent the summer of 1888 in its lone remaining building, an old cook shack, and wrote "Silverado Squatters."

Where brawny miners once sought for gold and brawled among themselves in their off hours, little girls today seek a different kind of gold — the clean mountain air and healthful outdoor surroundings that contribute to their proper physical and mental growth.

THIS SUMMER will mark the 15th camping season for Camp Kilowana. There will be five sessions. And each of these sessions will see approximately 110 girls, Blue Birds, Camp Fire Girls and Horizon Club members, in camp, enjoying activities that include council fires, cookouts treasure hunts, swimming, dramatics, archery, riding, badminton, camp craft, handcraft, folk dancing, nature lore, hiking, tumbling, singing, etc.

Much of these pleasures are made possible by the girls "older sisters," the camp counselors.

These important positions are filled each summer by some 25 young women, either college students or just out of high school.

They work under adult directors to instruct in the crafts, lead the hikes, organize the games, and generally keep a close eye on the younger girls.

And, take it from Marie Smeltzer, a third year student at College of Marin at Kentfield who will be returning this summer for her third year as a camp counselor, it's the ideal summer job for the collegian.

Miss Smeltzer, a San Francisco resident who boards in Kentfield while attending college, plans to enroll at San Jose State next fall to continue her preparation for a career as a physical education teacher. She thus regards her work and contacts with young girls at Camp Kilowana as valuable experience and preparation for that future.

But, she adds, the work is also a lot of fun.

NO SMALL item is the fact that the counselors, like their younger charges, are provided with the opportunity to enjoy outdoors surroundings and activities.

Then, too, there is the chance to make lasting friendships with the other girls who serve as counselors. Not all come from California. Some hail from other states — Wisconsin, Oregon, etc.

Miss Smeltzer likes the work because it brings her in contact with youngsters. "I have always been interested in children," she says.

And it provides her with an opportunity to continue her interest in a field which began when she herself was a Brownie and Girl Scout in her younger years.

She admits, however, that she now has more fun as a counselor than she used to have when she attended camp as a Girl Scout.

She first became interested in counseling work when a Kilowana Camp director came to the college campus to talk about the need for such help. Marie applied. "But I wasn't hired right off," she recalls. "In fact, it wasn't until three days before camp was to open that I got the job."

A week-long training period at Camp Kilowana prepares the counselors for their work prior to the arrival of the young campers.

THIS YEAR Marie will be serving as assistant program director in addition to her counselor duties.

She says that she would like to continue spending her summers at Kilowana for two or three more years. "It's more like a vacation than a job," she says.

And when she goes into teaching she hopes to have the time to continue her interest, possibly as a volunteer leader in the Camp Fire movement.

Does she advise parents of Camp Fire Girls to permit their children to attend camp?

Most definitely yes. "I think it is a wonderful experience for them and most worthwhile," she says.

While the girls are close to nature, they don't "rough it" unduly, she notes. Sleeping, eating and living facilities are generally comfortable.

And experiences such as sleeping in hammocks during an overnight hike, or learning to sand paint are ones the youngsters do not soon forget.

How old should the girls be before they first attend camp?

IT DEPENDS on the child, she says. Some 7-year-olds, she has observed, are mature enough to enjoy and benefit from camp. Others should wait a year or two longer.

"But parents know their own children and are the best judges as to whether their daughters are ready for camp," she stresses.

But Marie will promise parents who decide to send their daughters to Camp Kilowana that, once they arrive, they will receive only the best in care and guidance.

That's the job of the director and the counselors. And it is a responsibility they carry out fully and enthusiastically.

TOASTMISTRESS CLUB No. 651 of Marin is in session at The Woodlands at Kentfield. Presiding from the speaker's stand is the current president, Mrs. Muriel Brown. Ahead lies an evening of good food, fellowship and interesting talks. Photos by Jim Kean.

They Keep Their Minds In Trim

Thirty Marin Women Use Toastmistress Program As Mental Sitting-Up Exercises

By CAROL HAGEL

"It keeps my mind in trim."

That, says Mrs. Jean Hanson is why she joined and has continued to be an active participant in the activities of Toastmistress Club No. 651 of Marin.

She will point out that women spend hours in reducing salons, gymnasiums and in front of their television sets performing exercises to keep their bodies trim.

"Well," she says, "Toastmistress is my way of taking mental sitting-up exercises."

Native of Idaho, mother of eight children, she looks like a young Montgomery street secretary. She is a lover of the outdoors. But Toastmistress, a strictly indoors pursuit, is one of her top enthusiasms.

SHE COMES from a "Toastmistressing" family. Her mother and two sisters are also Toastmistresses.

Currently she serves the Marin unit as program chairman, in charge of passing the assignments out among the members on a "rotating" basis so that each Toastmistress has something different to do at each meeting.

One time a member will give a short speech. At the next meeting she might open the meeting. Or perhaps she will be a timekeeper. Or an evaluator.

It's all part of the organization's goal of helping its members to develop their abilities, personalities and leadership potentialities so that they can function better on a personal level, a local level, the national level, and, most important, an international level so that they can serve to promote better understanding between all the peoples of the earth.

There are 30 women in Marin unit No. 651, all dedicated to this very pursuit.

THE GROUP meets twice a month, the second and fourth Thursdays, at 7 p.m. for dinner and after-dinner public speaking at The Woodlands restaurant in Kentfield.

Generally, four speeches of between five and seven minutes in length are given. During and after the dinner, each individual member has her opportunity at speaking before a friendly group, being evaluated (constructively criticized), conducting meetings in various capacities, and learning parliamentary law in small, easy doses; thereby acquiring poise, tact and friendliness so that she can harmoniously adjust to all kinds of personal interrelationships.

Membership includes single girls in professional life, young mothers with small children and mature mothers with grown children (there are even a few grandmothers), highly successful career women and women retired from the professions. One mother has eight children, another six, and yet both find time to be actively creative in the group. There are nurses, secretaries, publicity experts, real estate women and bankers.

How did Toastmistress Club start? Perhaps one should go back to 1938 when the International Toastmistress Club, a corporation, came into being, although the name "Toastmistress" had been used previously by other clubs. In that year, the Los Angeles Toastmistress Club was organized by the wives and friends of Toastmasters and, as other clubs were born, an association of Toastmistress Clubs was formed in Southern California.

Through the enthusiasm and initiative of Ernestine White, president of the San Francisco Toastmistress Club, all the Toastmistress Clubs then existing were united into a non-profit corporation international in scope.

Of this dedicated woman, who died in 1943, at the age of 38, it was said, "She was an inspired woman with an urge to help women develop poise, dignity, a serious purpose, and quality of character. She felt that it was necessary to develop the ability to converse and speak intelligently in order to be leaders in the home, in the community, and in the nation."

FROM THIS beginning clubs have sprung up all over the United States and throughout the world in such far-flung places as Japan, Hawaii, Thailand, Scotland and England, to mention a few.

It was on Feb. 14, 1955, that the Marin charter was signed by Mabelle Culpepper as president and Betty Gordon as secretary. Thirty members attended that first group. Much of the credit should be given to Mrs. Culpepper, prominent realtor who has had her own business in Larkspur for 25 years.

But in her own words, "Marin Toastmistress Club 651 is a reality because of Alice English, an East Bay realtor. In June of 1954, while I was attending a directors' meeting of the California Real Estate Assn. in Eureka, Alice made the remark that 'anyone can get up and make a speech.' This I challenged, saying, 'That is a large order, lady!' Then from Alice came, 'Don't you have a Toastmistress Club in your town?' 'No', said I, 'not even in the county!' "

After this banter, the challenged Mrs. Culpepper started in earnest to organize a Toastmistress group in Marin. It was at Sacramento, at the council meeting, that the Marin unit came into International Toastmistress Clubs' fold. Mrs. Culpepper was the first president and has held most of the other offices since then. In her own words, "Toastmistress is my first and last love."

Who are some of the outstanding members and what does Toastmistress mean to them? You have already met Mrs. Hanson. And there are many others who, like her, are devoted to the program.

For instance, the president of the Marin group this term is Mrs. Muril Brown, known as "Mitzi" to her friends. Tall, blonde and gracious, she comes from Wisconsin and has lived in California since 1941, moving to Novato in 1956. She is both a business woman and housewife. Happily married (her husband is a deputy sheriff), she is presently living in Novato, loves gardening in her spare time and is employed in an executive capacity with the Northwestern Savings and Loan Assn. in San Rafael. She is a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Novato and many other professional groups. She has this to say of Toastmistress, "The club has given me a better understanding of people, has taught me more proficient ways of expressing my opinions, and has made it possible for me to speak with ease before a group of people."

AND THEN there is Mrs. Marian Allen, vivacious with brown curly hair and a wide friendly smile. Mother of six children (five boys and a new little girl), she is presently a silent partner in her husband's engineering business, in her own words, "doing everything but the engineering."

About Toastmistress she says, "It has helped me learn the gracious, thoughtful, friendly way of conducting programs and meetings." This term she is membership chairman and she has brought many women into the group who feel they would like to contribute and gain at the same time. Salesmanship of an ideal is her motto either in person or on the phone and when she is called at Wabash 4-4430 she is always helpful in explaining the merits of this group.

It seems, she will tell the caller, that shy people who have difficulty at times in expressing themselves find that Toastmistress helps them to conquer this shortcoming.

Such people find the atmosphere of a Toastmistress meeting so friendly and understanding that, before she realizes it, the shy one is on her feet and talking fluently, much to her own surprise.

To others, Mrs. Allen says, Toastmistress serves as a fine way to develop new friendships, lifelong in many cases.

BUT THE movement's prime purpose remains to stimulate personal growth so that the individual can become the group leader so sorely needed in these times —and certain to become even more badly needed in the future.

Yes, she asserts, the "word spoken trippingly on the tongue" has been the open sesame permitting many women to enter a new and richer world.

DELIVERING HER talk from the speakers stand is Toastmistress Club member Mrs. Regina Waldon.

EVALUATORS are alert with pencil and paper as they prepare their constructive criticism of the after dinner speech being delivered by Mrs. Waldron.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

How important is the word STEREO? The word is being unscrupulously bandied about just as were the words Hi-Fi. The commercial advertisers are using these magical words to sell the general public low grade music systems, while making them believe that they are purchasing the latest and best equipment.

What can you do about it? The simplest thing you can do is to know what to look for in a good stereo music system. It is not enough that a system be labeled STEREO or that it provides two sources of sound. Since basically a stereo system consists of two music systems playing together, it follows that for a stereo home music unit to be good each of the two individual units must be good. A high quality distortion-free stereo music console for your home must perform with crisp, clear, full-range tone as a single or monaural system.

A word of advice, when listening to a demonstration, have the salesman play only one side of the system monaurally. If it doesn't have a rich, full-bodied tone the unit is of low quality and depends on the illusion of stereo to make it sound better.

Visit our Stereo, Hi-Fi store and have our Audio Specialists demonstrate our home music systems. Our Audio Specialists will demonstrate and explain each component of the system. With a component music system properly balanced by our Audio Specialists and engineering staff you will get the highest quality sound for your budget dollar.

The Man With Many Careers

There Aren't Many Jobs That Busy Jack Marcley Hasn't Tackled

BY
M. ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

Looking over Jack Marcley's varied activities for the past 13 years, one wonders when he took time for such ordinary time consumers as eating and sleeping.

Jack's multi-career life began in 1947 when, fresh out of the Army Engineer Corps, he entered New York's Art Student's League. One of his art-teachers was the late Yosou Kuniyoski, one of the world's great painters.

His next project was to open (not one, but) three art-shops which specialized in sign - painting, illustrated signs, murals ("same price as wallpaper"), etc.

A native of Manhattan, Jack had been married and a father at 18. His wife was a former Conover model. His daughter by that first marriage is Valerie Jean, in whose honor Jack gave the name "Val-Pal" to his cabin cruiser, presently berthed in San Rafael's yacht-harbor.

In 1959, he had an offer to work as art director of the Paul Winchell-Jerry Mahoney "What's My Name?" show. Pinch-hitting in some of the crazy-quiz comedy skits, Jack discovered his flair for comedy.

Paul Winchell—"A fellow-artist and a great guy to work for" according to Jack—gave him his stage-name of "Jack Dali." Things began to roll along faster and soon Jack Marcley-Dali was also working on the Milton Berle show as both art director and comedian. Within a few months, in addition to these shows, Jack was also associated with several other shows, including "Cosmopolitan Theater," "Battle of the Burroughs," Bill Goodwin Show, Jan Murray's "Go Lucky" show and "Stop the Music."

TO KEEP things from getting dull Jack (Benzadrine-Dali-Marcley) next bought "Club 33" on Long Island. Here he was master of ceremonies, producer, director and anything else the occasion demanded. The original "Spanky" (Jack Barthwell) from "Our Gang" films was bartender and manager of the club.

In his "spare-time" Jack also made a period-movie called "Main Street, U.S.A." for Sherman Marks on Great Neck, Long Island. One of Jack's chores for the movie was to rearrange a street on Great Neck to look more like the older Main Street of the film. After the company had finished with the location shots, Sherman Marks told Jack: "Okay, Jack, restore the street now, and I'll see you." Sherman then turned to his cameramen and began discussing some camera-angle problems.

Jack busily changed signs over stores, pulled off fake gold-lettering from office-doors, changed back street-signs, pulled the coverings off fireplugs (which had looked too modern for the film) and soon had all other details restored to normal. Then he briskly said "goodby" to Sherman who wore a very surprised look on his face.

Next day when Jack came to a rehearsal for Cosmopolitan Theater, also directed by Sherman Marks, Sherman interrupted the rehearsal. "Here is the man who completely tore down a set consisting of a whole street in just 15 minutes, when I had expected it would take a couple of days to do the job. Ladies and gentlemen, meet Jack Marcley, an absolute genius!"

After this, it took a while before Jack's head-size got back to normal, he admits with a grin.

JACK'S father-in-law in Beverly, Mass., was planning to retire in a few years and offered Jack the opportunity to learn the business and eventually manage it. Jack spent some time in Beverly at the factory, learning from the heel-and-sole up how to be a shoe designer. He kept up with some of his New York activities, doing work for the Berle show on a unique remote-control basis, going to New York only for the final rehearsal.

Although he worked hard at the factory, Jack felt he was "in prison" in Beverly and gave up the shoe-business. At about the same time, his marriage also broke up.

When Milton Berle went to the West Coast, Jack decided to stay on in New York. For the first time he went on the road as an act. His billing gave him the slogan "Dilly with Dali." This was later shortened to his better-known nickname "Dilly Dali."

Speaking of this tour, Jack says: "I spent two years on the road without getting home, and I was discovered 27 different times!"

One incident Jack describes as "fracturous" happened during a rehearsal of the Paul Winchell show. With a girl friend, Jack slipped into the balcony to watch the rehearsal. Blazing spotlights played on the stage but in the balcony the atmosphere was dim, quiet and romantic. Somehow, the balcony darkness became more interesting than the brightly-lit rehearsal on stage. In a few minutes, someone on stage with spotlight-penetrating-vision noticed the balcony scene and tipped off the stagehands operating the spotlights. Instantly all the spotlights swirled away from the stage, pinpointing the couple in the balcony. The entire company, including stagehands, people from backstage and even from the control-booth, came out and stood on stage, watching.

FINALLY aware they were no longer behind the glaring lights, Jack and his girl came out of a clinch and stood up. Everyone present broke into loud applause and cheers. The young lady, overcome by embarrassment, quickly slipped out of the theater and Jack never saw her again.

For a long time after this incident, he was often greeted by friends with the line: "Jack, I have a lady in the balcony!"

"TV is a business for young people," says Jack Marcley. "The many pressures, the unexpected late-hour rehearsals, etc.; make it a very demanding profession."

One example of time-pressure occurred on the Paul Winchell show when about half-an-hour beforehand it was decided that some extra artwork was needed for the opening scene. In Jack's absence, the job was handed to his assistant, who didn't quite know how to take care of it. While he was still struggling, Jack returned, just a few minutes before showtime. His assistant hurriedly told him the story and Jack quickly took over. The stage-manager stood over him with a stopwatch, counting down the seconds before the opening curtain. As soon

"How Can I Pack A Bag To Reduce Wrinkling?"—Mrs. A.C.N.

Dear Mrs. A. C. N.:

There are a few simple tricks which any careful traveler can use and she will find her garments less wrinkled when she arrives at her destination. Good packing is planned and accomplished slowly.

Dresses are folded in a straight line from the shoulder to the hem on each side. Sleeves are arranged in a "V" and the dress is then folded to fit the bag. Frilly items, wrapped around cardboard from a man's shirt, will not wrinkle. Hose may be packed in a pocket or glove to prevent runs. Roll your jewelry in a towel to protect it. Don't pack your bag too tightly.

The man in your life can use some packing instructions, too. He should smooth his garments carefully. To keep folded suits from creasing, insert a few layers of crumpled tissue paper between the folds. Use all the space in a suitcase. Stuff socks in the shirt collar ring. It saves space and prevents the collars from crushing.

To fold a jacket, button it and lay it face down on the bed. Put the sleeves in a "V" across the back; smooth out the shoulders and then fold the jacket across the middle with the sleeves inside. It's ready for packing.

Pack in layers — heavy things first, smaller pieces last. Underwear, towels, socks, handkerchiefs can be the bottom layer.

Plan your packing. Don't hurry. Make a list of what you take so you will have everything when you repack. Then, enjoy yourself on your trip.

Man Who Has Done Everything

as Jack put down his brush, the sign was immediately rushed on stage and put in place. The stagehand's heels had barely disappeared as the curtain parted on the opening scene.

ON THE Cosmopolitan Theater show there was a problem on the credits.

As yet, the network didn't have an electric "crawl" to slowly display the credits, so it was decided to fake a "zoom-bar" effect with hand-turned cards. When Jack had the cards made, a big conference arose among propertymen, scenery designers and stagehands over the question of who could do what part of the card-turning without infringing on each others' unions. Finally, they arrived at a working agreement. When the show went on and the credits began to show on the screen, some of the mens' hands were visible holding the cards; some cards were held at weird, hard-to-read angles; one stagehand even dropped his card and fell down right in front of the camera.

"This was one of those things you hoped would never happen—but it did, a real TV nightmare," says Jack.

Another special - pressure TV problem arose on the same show. Jack had a scenery designer's union card. The head property-man at the theater liked to have Jack do the cue cards. One day, he decided to let the production-men (from the advertising agency) know that he did not like to have them do some of the cue cards, since they were not union men, and in the future he wanted Jack to do all the cards. Word of this dictum quickly got around the studio. Several vice-presidents and other big wheels came rolling into the studio. They emphasized — among other things—the economic angle: The cost would go up if a union man did all the cards. As more people came in, the studio began to look like a rehearsal for a mob-scene. Finally, after a conversation on the telephone, the head property-man threw up his hands.

"Jack," he said, "I just heard Sarnoff, himself, is on his way over. I think we'll just go ahead and let the production men do it!"

IN 1957, tired of living out of a suitcase, Jack did a complete change of pace by entering a hair-and-scalp college in Chicago to study trichology—a word the Greeks had for the science of treating the hair. While at college, Jack spent some time between classes playing a few dates with the "Harmonicats." After he left college, Jack finally came out to the West Coast to work for the Turoff Hair and Scalp Clinics, for which he was, until recently director and executive trichologist.

Jack was married again about a year ago to Lisa, an English girl. They have a daughter named Jacqueline Leslie.

Show business lured him back briefly on a part-time basis in San Francisco to play Police Captain Bednar for the San Francisco Theater Co. After his years of comedy, Jack thoroughly enjoyed doing a straight dramatic part, and he received "special mention" in the reviews.

One critic wrote: "Jack Dali gives terrible reality to the brutal police captain, playing with suave cynicism up to his final violent scenes." (Carolyn Stull in the "Oakland Tribune.")

As a further hint that show-business hasn't entirely forgotten him, some friends in San Francisco have started a "rat pack" in the same pattern as that of Frank Sinatra's in Hollywood. These friends may soon open a nightclub in San Francisco in honor of Jack Marcley - Dali - Trichologist.

A TYPICAL sign of his settling down to Marin County life, however, was the recent news that Jack Marcley had won a golf tournament in Mill Valley.

After several years of working in them, Jack no longer finds nightclubs entertaining to him. His main recreation today is taking friends out on the bay for an afternoon in his cabin cruiser.

Jack likes people and they seem to enjoy his company, too.

Jack has become an enthusiastic booster of life in this area. "People out here who haven't lived elsewhere don't realize how good they have it," he says. "What a wonderful climate this is for accomplishment! Never too cold with blizzarding snow and sleet, never too hot to feel like working."

Here is a checklist of Jack's activities, which include some not covered in detail in this story: Professional player and umpire in softball . . . teenage boxer . . . player on table-tennis teams . . . participant on swimming teams . . . aircraft worker . . . mural painter . . . artist . . . sculptor . . . art-director . . . dancing teacher . . . drama teacher . . . social director and athletic director at summer hotels . . . associate editor and drama critic for the "Diablo View" (a magazine published in Orinda) . . . private detective.

What are Jack Marcley's plans for the future? He recently resigned from the Turoff clinics and is presently organizing his own chain—the Marcley Hair and Scalp Clinics, with executive offices at 821 Market street, San Francisco.

Like most show-people, Jack has kept a scrapbook of his activities. Following many clippings, photos and ads about his other careers, are some ads for hair and scalp clinics. On this page, Jack has lettered the following inscription: "With the following ads ends a period of indecision. Notoriety is extinct. Now and for everlasting (I expect) my future is with the scalp clinics. Everlasting will be interpreted as that period until I retire."

"IN MY SHOW BUSINESS days, I was always known as a snappy dresser," Jack Marcley-Dali likes to quip when he shows this photo of himself in one of his comic costumes from his theater days. A smaller version of this photo appeared on his theatrical calling cards.

ONE OF JACK'S most popular comedy routines was a "madman" skit. Several versions of this snarling pose are found among old publicity photos. "A mad rogue," the term Shakespeare coined many years ago for Hamlet's friend, poor Yorick, was also apt for Jack in this role.

JACK ENJOYED THE opportunity to perform in a damatic role when he appeared as Police Capt. Bednar in "The Man With the Golden Arm" in San Francisco. Marcley had had earlier real life experience in police work as a "private eye" in this state.

FRED APOSTOLI shows the powerful muscles that carried him to the pinacle of professional prize-fighting — the middleweight championship of the world. Apostoli, now a Fairfax resident and Marin tavern owner, had captured the New York version of the world's title by stopping Young Corbett III in famed Madison Square Garden in 1938.

LOOKING LIKE ANYTHING but a future ring champ, young Fred Apostoli, left, posed with brother John for this boyhood picture.

PRESENT MIDDLEWEIGHT champion Gene Fulmer, left, and former titleholder Apostoli squared off playfully for the benefit of cameramen in San Francisco in August of last year. Apostoli is not high on today's present crop of fighters. "They don't like to work," he says, and contrasts that with the rigorous training programs of the boxers of his day.

cy in each mitt to put nearly half of his victims to dreamland.

IT WAS A slashing left hook that saved Apostoli in his bout with the Frenchman Thil. Behind on points, Apostoli landed a lightning left to Marcel's eye, opening an ugly gash that spilled blood all over Madison Square Garden. It was bad enough for the referee to halt the bout and give Apostoli the TKO victory in 10 rounds and the European middleweight and lightheavyweight crowns.

The afore-mentioned victories over Steele and Corbett were other highlights in Apostoli's long career. He calls Freddie Steele the best opponent he faced.

After losing the title to Garcia, Apostoli kept busy in the ring until 1941 when he joined the U. S. Navy, there to spend some 54 months as an athletic specialist.

It was during the service that Apostoli was honored as boxing's "Man of the Year" by Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer wrote that Fred had ". . . seen plenty of service in the South Pacific, has been through the thick of the fighting for the past year, and has also been coaching boxers and achieving amazing results in the line of morale."

Included in Fleischer's magazine was an interview carried by Associated Press, in which Ensign John Mitchell Quigg, Apostoli's superior officer, asserted that "If anyone deserves the man of the year boxing award, it is Fred Apostoli, both from a standpoint of bravery under fire and because, as a morale builder-upper, his influence on the seamen in the entire task force has been remarkable."

Another knockout for the Fighting Bellhop!

APOSTOLI was discharged from service in Sept. of 1945 and resumed his ring career until Turner stopped him in 1949.

Fred estimates he won $100,000 in purses in the squared circle and was smart enough to establish an endowment policy that enabled him to purchase the first of three taverns he's owned, a place called, naturally, "Freddie Apostoli's" in North Beach.

He kept that establishment for three and a half years, then sold it and opened another "Apostoli's" out on Mission street where he stayed more than five years before purchasing The Meadows near Hamilton Field three years ago.

"I guess I've always had a soft spot in my heart for Marin County," the ex-champ stated. "We used to hike over here as kids. I moved the family to Fairfax about seven years ago."

A former champion working behind the plank of a gin mill can run into problems, Apostoli admits. Some inebriates feel they can lick a former world champ, and still others have wanted to square off against the bartender, blissfully unaware of his fistic achievements.

But Apostoli has never had to use violence. "Sure, I've been challenged but I just walked away and kept my mouth shut."

Besides his keen interest in boxing and the Meadows, where he works a few hours a day, the Fighting Bellhop manages to spend some time on the golf course, primarily the Marin Club at Loma Verde, of which he and his wife are members. Yolanda, incidentally, is a champion in her own right, having ranked as one of Northern California's top amateur golfers for several years.

AND THE REST of the Apostoli clan? Well, Pa died about three years ago at the age of 72. His second wife, who had two daughters by a previous marriage, presented him with two more sons so Fred has two step-sisters and two half-brothers.

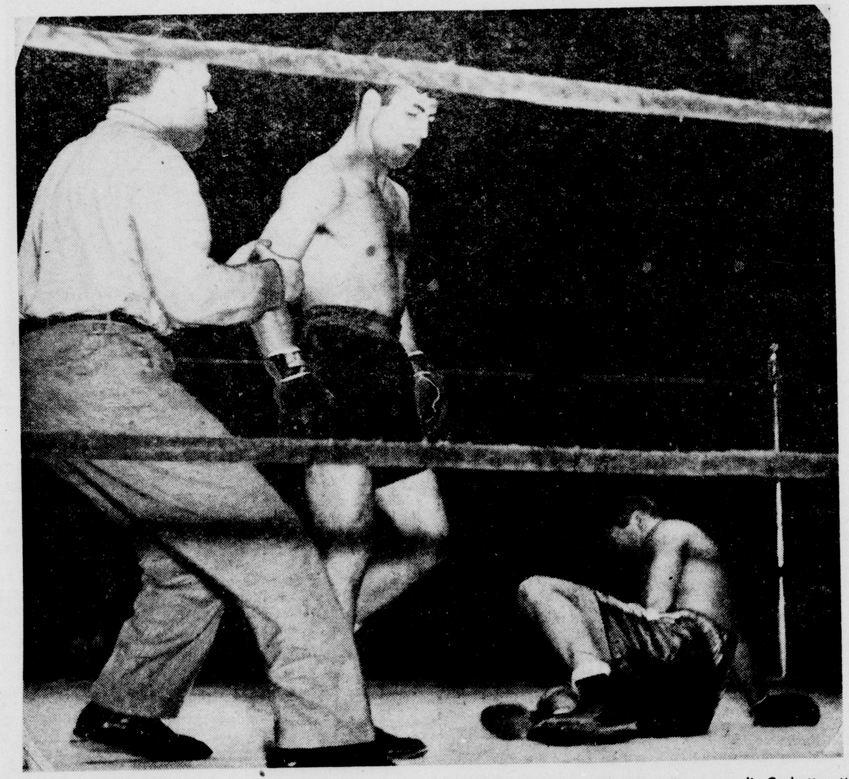
Brother John is owner of the Kentfield Garage.

Although more than 20 years have passed since Freddie Apostoli relinquished his title, he is still called on for public appearances by fans who haven't forgotten his greatness.

The loudest cheers are from those who know the real Freddie Apostoli and his conquest of things tougher than 160 pound opponents.

His loyal fans will tell you, "Whaddya mean, 'ex-champ.' He still is."

Can't argue with that



THE MAN APOSTOLI has on the canvas here is Young Corbett III, whose middleweight crown he won by a knockout in Madison Square Garden. Like Apostoli, Corbett settled in California when his ring career ended and became a tavern owner in Fresno.

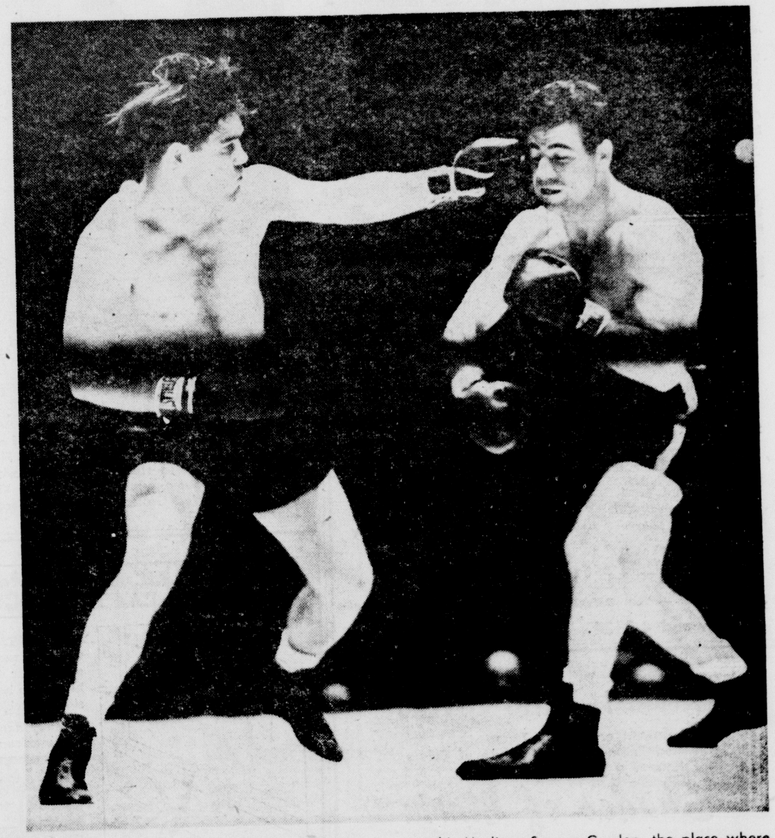
THIS FINE ACTION shot shows Fred Apostoli in a typical fighting pose, flattening one of his opponents. The victim was Pedro Jiminez. Apostoli scored a knockout victory in the bout fought in San Francisco. The fight occurred in 1946 when Apostoli was staging a comeback in the ring wars. The picture is one of the few Apostoli himself still owns as mementoes of his boxing career.



MIXING IT UP here are Nebraska middleweight Glen Lee and Apostoli, right, with the latter on the receiving end of a left. But Apostoli went on to win a 15-round decision in the bout fought in New York's Madison Square Garden, the place where every boxer wants to show his wares. A Novel, But Not Fiction

SON OF THE GAMBLIN' MAN, by Mari Sandoz, Clarkson N. Potter, Inc., 333 pages, $5. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Mari Sandoz, best known for "Old Jules" and "Crazy Horse," has attempted a rather difficult job with "Son of the Gamblin' Man." A novel which is not fiction but an expose of long-past events, but which she admits had to be written as fiction because of lack of factual detail with which to work.

John Jackson Cozad was a gamblin' man who knew (and was known in) plush eastern card rooms, steamers, Mississippi river boats, frontier saloons and all the places between, just past midway of the last century.

He was an unusual gambler for he had a dream: An oft-frustrated dream of becoming an empire builder, of creating a model community (in which there should be no gambling).

His greatest attempt at fulfilling the dream was at Cozad, Neb. But he was forced to flee for his life—and to change his name and the names of his two sons. One of the sons became a prominent artist under the name of Robert Henri. He was the son of the gamblin' man about whom the book is written.

The writer has done well with this unusual tale. And she has done even better at bringing to the printed page the feel and smell of a raw pioneer town beside the Union Pacific tracks on the Nebraska plain in the 1870s.

It is a fascinating book, and a piece of highly unusual Americana.

Ilka Chase Writes Off Sophisticates

THREE MEN ON THE LEFT HAND by Ilka Chase, Doubleday and Co., 282 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Sophisticate Ilka Chase writes again of sophisticates. The result — a typical Ilka Chase novel which Chase fans will like and which those who have disliked her previous books will again dislike.

As for those of us who are caught in between, liking some parts and phases of Miss Chase's work and disliking others, this new novel will probably be regarded as somewhat below par for her.

There's a New York, Washington and Plantation background. Characters are her usual multi-millionaires, power politicians, successful New York career women, etc. But somehow their doings do not seem as likely or as interesting as Miss Chase usually makes them.

On Stage In Marin County's Little Theaters

THESE ARE BUSY DAYS in the little theaters of Marin. For instance, tonight you can attend an 8:30 p.m. showing of "Where's Charley?," the Gate Players' hilarious musical, as Sausalito's Gate Playhouse. At left Avalon Lee and Jim Davis are shown in one of its tenderer moments, recalling their youth in waltz time. Or you can take in an original musical satire, "So What Else Is New?," a benefit for the American Field Service, also starting at 8:30 in the Mill Valley American Legion Hall. At right Arne Anderson sings "Committeewoman Blues" while his wife, a busy committeewoman, played by Patricia Searles, remonstrates. Also tonight, starting at 8:40, will be another production of the Sausalito Little Theater's "The Importance of Being Earnest." And tomorrow at 2 p.m. the final 1960 showing of the big and annual Mountain Play, "Alice In Wonderland," in Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mt. Tamalpais. Tonight's scheduled performance of "Sabrina Fair" by the Ross Valley Players has been canceled, and that run ended last night. (Photos by Herman Arrow and Dave German)

But, Sid writes, he didn't have to wait until he reached European shores to start feeling those Mediterranean breezes. Before departing he made a swing through the furniture factories of North Carolina. And, he writes back, he found the furniture being readied there for fall presentation to have a very definite trend toward the Mediterranean influence."

"Kind of French," "sort of Italian" and "along the traditional line," he reports, are the terms being used by manufacturers themselves to describe the new adaptations they are applying to bedroom furniture, dining room suites, occasional tables, et al.

Sid's own description: "Much of the furniture which is otherwise straight lined and contemporary smacks of the decorative European influence — marble inserts, burl panels, and elaborate hardware are among the formal accents being used.

"Accent colors such as Americana blue, celadon green, and rusty buckskin are used to complement wood tones in the occasional pieces."

So that, Mrs. Housewife, is what you can expect to see when the new fall furniture starts reaching Marin stores and interior decorator shops in a few months.

Just What Kind Of Gardener Are You?

Almost everyone dreams of having a beautiful lawn and garden. But there are three basic and very different motivations for gardening, it was discovered recently in a nationwide research study of people's gardening habits made for the Ferry-Morse Seed Co. by Dr. Bertram Klass of Forbes Market Research Inc.

Dr. Klass suggests that not only do your attitudes show what kind of gardener you are, they also may reveal your basic motivations in life.

To make a rough check of your own attitudes, ask yourself these questions, and check the answers. Your answers will indicate the type of gardener you are.

1. What kind of a garden would you want?
( ) a. The nicest garden in your neighborhood.
( ) b. Neat and trim garden that adds to the appearance of your house.
( ) c. A garden in which you succeed, despite all hindrances, in growing plants that are difficult to grow.

2. What would be your chief satisfaction in working in a garden?
( ) a. Sharing your gardening experiences with friends and having a garden you can be proud of.
( ) b. The opportunity of working outdoors in the sunshine.
( ) c. The uplifted feeling you get from working close to nature, in being close to the "miracle" of growing things, and of triumphing over handicaps.

3. What would be your chief satisfaction in having a lawn?
( ) a. A lawn in which you can take pride, a lawn which is a showplace in the neighborhood.
( ) b. The peace and relaxation you get in working on the lawn, and having a lawn which is as neat and presentable as others in the neighborhood.
( ) c. Being an expert on lawn care, and keping your lawn rich and green at all times.

4. Do you belong to a garden club?
( ) a. yes
( ) b. no

5. Do you
( ) a. Plan your garden months ahead
( ) b. Wait to get seeds, plants, and fertilizers when your need them.

There are these three types of gardeners:

THE "SHOW-ERS" — To some people, gardening is a way to show their pride in their homes and their community. They are likely to have the most extensive and beautiful lawns and gardens in the neighborhood.

To a "Show-er" the lawn and garden are status symbols. And if you answered "a" to the questions above, you probably belong in this group. The "Show-er" delights in the new and spectacular flowers. Those zinnias as big as butter plates—colored and striped with all the hues of the rainbow . . . marigolds tall as children and with blooms that look like matchless mammoth mumms . . . huge ruffled petunias that dance colorful can-cans in the breeze . . . these and many other such are found in the garden of the "Show-er."

THE "MOWERS" — To other people, gardening means a chance to spend many peaceful, pleasant hours outdoors. They enjoy the exercise and change from the demands of the work-a-day world. They are interested more in the activity of gardening than in the results. They want a neat, trim garden that adds to the appearance of their home; but they have no special interest in a showplace.

A "Mower" is a self-oriented gardener. He likes gardening for the pleasure it gives him. If you answered "b" to the questions, you belong in this group.

The "Mower" is likely to stick with the conventional — the "tried and true" in flowers, with occasional experiments with the exotic. If something turns out spectacular, he is happy about it, but isn't too disappointed if it doesn't. He will kill weeds in the lawn with chemicals, but rarely grubs them out by hand.

THE "GROWERS" — Still other people find in gardening a deep personal or religious satisfaction in working close to nature and God. They love to see young sprouts pop out of ground and participate in the miracle of growing things. These are the nature-oriented gardeners, and you belong to this group if you answered "c" to the first three questions, "b" to the fourth, and "a" to the fifth.

"Growers" are in the minority as a gardening type, but probably you know a few. Frequently they know more about gardening than most "Show-ers" or "Mowers." Often they are the people with "green thumbs" who can grow anything.

To the "Grower" the challenge in a plant or flower is more important than any spectacular

The outer-directed, "Show-er" type of person wants to keep a little ahead, because he enjoys recognition from others for personal or business success. Different people do it in different ways. Some "Show-ers" buy expensive, late-model cars. Others are the first in the neighborhood to have color television, try to have the best parties or the most stylish clothes. To the gardening "Show-er," his garden is a status symbol.

Some "Mowers" may be "Show-ers" when it comes to cars or other status symbols, but basically the "Mower" is an inner-directed person. He doesn't mind too much if the Joneses' car is newer than his, because the personal pleasure he gets from an activity is more important to him than recognition by others. Sometimes the magic of growing things takes a grip on a "Mower," and he becomes a "Grower."

If your answers are mixed, it does not mean you are a "mixed-up" person. More likely it indicates a rounded personality that can partake of several types of gardening pleasure.

HERE ARE THE two new All-America rose award winners for 1961. At left ,the Pink Parfait ,a delicately color-blended ,semi-double blossomed grandiflori. At right ,the Duet, a richly distinctive bi-colored hybrid tea. Both were developed by Armstrong Nurseries of Ontario.

2 Newcomers Join Select Rose Ranks

Two exciting new roses — Duet, a hybrid tea, and pink Parfait, a grandiflora — have been selected as winners of the All-America Rose award for 1961.

This is an important horticultural honor given only to roses with superior qualifications.

The new title-holders, chosen after years of testing under the most varied conditions will go on sale for the first time this fall.

Duet is the eighth hybrid tea to win an award in the last 10 years. Hybrid teas are perhaps the best known class of roses, and feature the classic, perfectly formed flower usually borne on a single stem. They are particular favorites for cutting and household arrangement.

Duet is a unique, bi-colored rose which blends two warm, rich colors. The inner surface of the petal is a soft salmon-pink, while the reverse is a contrasting rosy crimson. The unusual coloring harmonizes well with most interior decor.

THE FLOWERS are medium in size and beautifully formed. The handsome blooms of thirty petals are borne on strong, medium-length stems, ideal for cutting and arrangement. Flowers hold their petals well, and retain their rich colors through wide variations of weather.

The plant is vigorous and free - branching, producing luxuriant foliage which makes it useful in any part of the garden. During the All-America testing period of two years judges reported that Duet showed an exceptional resistance to mildew.

Pink Parfait is the third All-America Rose Award winner in the grandiflora class, which was introduced in 1955. In keeping with the requirements of the class, it combines the outstanding characteristics of the hybrid tea and the floribunda, and seems destined to become a great national favorite. Its flowers are a delicate blending of pink pastel shades, with the bud stage ranking from dawn pink to apple blossom pink. The buds are medium-sized but produced in heavy quantity, and it is plant to carry 100 or more buds at the same time.

In the open stages, the semi-double flowers range from dawn pink to deep rose, the color often varying somewhat according to the weather. As benefits a grandiflora, the plant is large and vigorous, and at the same time, its foliage is neat and compact, forming a perfect background for the heavy flower clusters. Its pleasing colors blend readily with almost any interior and it makes a unique addition to arrangement for the home.

PERHAPS THE most significant common characteristic of the two 1961 winners is the ease with which they can be grown anywhere in the United States. With relatively little effort, anyone can produce hundreds of these striking flowers during the growing season.

As the 54th and 55th roses to win the All-America Duet and Pink Parfait join the exclusive company of the world's finest roses. The system was inaugurated in 1938 by a number of the country's leading growers and introducers. Its major purpose was to raise rose standards by eliminating all but the finest varieties before they come to market through testing.

Tests are carried out over a two-year period in 23 official gardens located in different parts of the U.S. Here impartial judges score all entries according to a uniform scoring system which allows points for thirteen different characteristics such as novelty, vigor, disease-resistance, color, form, fragrance, etc. At the end of the two-year period the one or two varieties achieving the highest scores are selected for an award.

Entries for the trials are submitted by leading hybridizers of the world.

To develop a new rose, the hybridizer selects "parents," roses which have demonstrated outstanding characteristics over the years. These are cross pollenated, and the resulting new variety is studied closely for several years. Its entire life history is carefully recorded to determine whether or not it has a chance to meet the All-America standards.
